LARA agrees to spare Barley farm

ETER KRIEG
STER—The Lan- Area Refuse (LARA) decided afternoon that they will refrain from taking the controversial 58 acres of farmland in Manor Township for a landfill. The decision came after weeks of public pressure — both from the farm and non-farm sectors — and a meeting held earlier in the day in Harrisburg by the House Agriculture Committee.

The farmland at stake is owned by John and Abram Barley, who operate one of the largest dairy farms in Lancaster County. If LARA had succeeded in taking 58 acres of the Barleys' home farm, the area would have been stripped of its soil. The Refuse Authority had filed a declaration of taking by eminent domain, but backed STER—The 1977 nd raising banquet nsylvania Poultry n, held here at the rm on Thursday evening, drew another record turnout as ticket sales exceeded their goal by more than 100. John Hoffman, executive secretary of the Federation noted during his welcome message that a goal of 1100 sold tickets was set. More than 1200 were sold when the final tally was made.

Credit for the good turnout was given to members themselves, who are supporting their state's poultry industry by participating at events such as this. More than two dozen PPF members stood in a class by themselves, however, and have been recognized by the Federation for outstanding salesmanship. They were the "Gold Feather" recipients, and are listed within a separate article appearing on page 129.

The large turnout represented an entire industry, with hundreds of representatives present from the producer, processor, and allied industry segments of the

rmers object to proposed dam

IETER KRIEG
NGVILLE, Pa.— l County farmers in ert Valley area, as scores of other d citizens in the County, are attempting to stop the possible construction of a dam which may swallow up as many as 17 farms. A public meeting was held Monday evening at the fire hall, here to bring both sides of the issue to the surface. An estimated 140 people packed the hall, with the crowd on occasion getting a bit noisy.

Most of the questioning was directed at Richard Heiderstadt, an environmental planner and sociologist representing the

Moon dust may end rock picking forever

By BARNEY NIXNUTZ

SUBSOIL, VT. – A startling discovery was made public here on April 1 when the famed German-born geologist and breeder of pet rocks, Dr. Wolfgang von Steinfelder, announced the successful sterilization of stones by pollinating them with powdered moon rocks.The revolutionary breakthrough is cautiously rated as being equal in magnitude to the invention of the plow and all other modern farm equipment combined. If von Steinfelder's work proves true in the field, the backbreaking and annoying work of picking stones will be ended forever.

The pet rock trainer's miraculous discovery works similar in principle to the sterilization technique being experimented with to control insects. Von Steinfelder came across the discovery accidentally when he spilled moon dust on male pebbles in his rock garden. He noticed that a unique change took place in the stones' reproductive system, which rendered them sterile when they reached the mature boulder stage. What's more female rocks find these sterilized boulders irresistible.

Von Steinfelder's former personal rock gardener, Rocky ridges, notes, however, that specific conditions are required for the technique to work. A pitch-black clear night under a full moon and an overcast sky is best, he says.

Ridges, recently quit working for von Steinfelder and allegedly took a supply of moon dust with him. He is now reportedly self-employed in his recently established laboratory for the advancement of precious stones, and is feverishly attempting to fertilize gems with powdered moon rocks.

Meanwhile, von Kteinfelder is dividing his time between breeding and training pet rocks and perfecting the rock sterilization technique.

Lancaster Farming's ace foreign correspondent, Harry J. Tripbottom, who is currently stationed in Oslo, Norway, cabled the office late last night that Steinfelder is being considered for a Nobel Prize.

But lest farmers prematurely leap for joy over the earthshaking discovery, it should be noted that a number of obstacles remain before von Steinfelder can market his technique on a wide scale.

First of all, finding rocks in their puberty stage is extremely difficult. Secondly, unless the exploration of the moon is resumed, there isn't going to be enough powdered moon rock around to treat everybody's field. field.

Also, several agencies in Washington, D.C. are expected to step into the picture. Says I.M. Stoned of OSHA: "We are very much interested in following the rock sterilization procedures, while simultaneously keeping a safe distance to avoid contamination. Safety first, you know."

The Environmental Protection Agency, (EPA) will undoubtedly call for an environmental impact statement. After all, what's a world without rocks.

Despite the obstacles, von Steinfelder is proceeding on course and is hoping to have his technique commercially available by April Fool's Day 1978.

NORTHCO'S MASTER PAN
rom day old to processing

Cleaning is simplified. Pans simply snap into place on the grill No nuts or bolts to remove. And the grill evenly divides the feeding space to eliminate crowding

Core Auger mixes feed better than spring augers or chain The core auger delivers a uniform ration to all your birds eed Level is easily ad-sted with one hand. And e narrow drop spout revents feed from ecoming stale

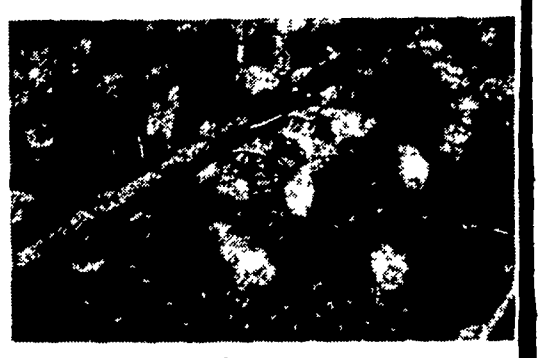
Quick-Tach clip makes spout installation and removal fast and simple No screws, nuts or bolts A shocker (not shown) is also available to keep birds from roosting on the feeder

Day Old



3 Weeks

Pans are shallow enough for day old chicks to get inside, yet contoured so feed waste is virtually eliminated The entire feeder line can be easily raised with a power winch system as the birds grow, further controlling feed waste.

Lancaster Farming
Serving The Central and Southeastern Pennsylvania Areas

EDITORIAL COMMENTS

By Dieter Krieg, Editor

Congratulations to many

A lot of congratulations are in order this week to acknowledge public efforts and wise decisions. To begin with, the Lancaster Area Refuse Authority should be congratulated for their response to the public. In deciding to leave the John and Abram Barley farm out of their landfill site plans, the Authority has set a good example. What's more they're looking into several other alternatives for disposing refuse, and if these pursuits continue some very noteworthy and positive developments may result.

Congratulations are in order to all those who helped persuade the Refuse Authority to seek other means of disposing Lancaster County's refuse. Thousands of people showed their support by attending meetings and writing letters. Here's a tip of the hat to the Pennsylvania House Agricultural Committee, which showed a keen interest in the developments; to Amos Funk, who spent an estimated 40 hours of his own time researching the controversial issue; to the Barleys' lawyer, James Heinly, who studied the issues to their finest detail; to the Lancaster County Poultry Association, which encouraged a letter-writing campaign; and to countless others who devoted time and efforts to win a battle on behalf of agriculture.

While passing out the bouquets, here's one for the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation. The statewide organization held its annual fund-raising banquet on Thursday evening. As usual, they put on a fantastic show, which can be taken as a reflection of the quality of the industry in Pennsylvania. But there's something else to all that. The fact that the poultry people in the state are so well organized is admirable and might serve as an example for other groups to follow. The fact that more than a thousand people from all across the state gathered on one evening at a cost of $60 per dinner ticket is a credit to the Federation. It's proof that it's worthwhile, because nearly anybody can come to dinner if it's free or cheap. The Poultry Federation sets high goals and evidently has hundreds of enthused, dedicated people behind it.

Congratulations to all!

THE PERFECT PRAYER

Lesson for April 3, 1977

Background Scripture: Mark 11:1-11 14:1 through 15:41. Devotional Reading: John 3:14-21.

The supposed site of the Garden of Gethsemane is one of the favorite places of pilgrims to the Holy Land. Sitting across the Kidron Valley from the walls of the Holy City, the site today consists of a lovely garden and an intriguing church, The Church of All Nations. Inside the church there is a rock where it is believed that Jesus knelt in prayer on the night in which he was betrayed. Almost every pilgrim who visits this revered church, kneels silently for a few moments at this spot and prays silently.

Remain here, and watch!

It is a natural place to pray. The darkness of the church maintains the impression of the same darkness in which Jesus knelt to pray. There is barely a sound in the church, just the muffled sounds of shoes gliding over the hard surface of the floor. The strange and beautiful stained glass windows in the ceiling bathe the whole area in a soft, purple light. It is difficult not to sink to one's knees here!

Yet, I sometimes wonder, of all those who kneel to pray here, how many remember to pray in the same manner that Jesus did, for his prayer in Gethsemane is really the ultimate in prayer. It is the perfect prayer that should be for all of us a model.

Unfortunately, however, the prayer is frequently misunderstood. It is regarded too often as a mere formality, a symbolic ritual. The Gospel of Mark, however, makes it clear that the prayer is anything but that.

For one thing, Jesus's prayer in Gethsemane is occasioned by genuine distress on his part. Mark tells us that Jesus was "greatly distressed and trouble" (14:33).This is no symbolic act that Jesus is acting-out to instruct his disciples. Jesus himself leaves no doubt, saying: "My soul is very sorrowful, even to death," or as the New English Bible renders it: "My heart is ready to break with grief" (14:34). The fact that "he fell on the ground and prayed" also indicates his state of emotions.

What thou wilt

Some people regard this as a prayer of resignation, of giving-in to the worst, but this is not so. Behind the prayer is the assumption that "all things are possible to thee," that regardless of what happens he is in God's hands and his future is secure. Understandably he would rather avoid the suffering that seems to lie before him, but he knows that this concern for himself is no less than his Father's concern for him. He would prefer not to have to "drink this cup," but he knows that if he does drink the cup, if he must suffer and perhaps even die, the Father will still keep him secure.

Submitting himself to God's will and confident that in doing so he will be most secure, Jesus prays for both himself and us the perfect prayer.

TO BAND SEED LEGUMES

Growers wanting to make straight seedings of alfalfa or red clover should consider the use of the band seeding method. This requires an attachment to the grain or seed drill to carry the seeds down under the drill and drop them over a band of complete fertilizer. This method has given excellent results and we suggest it be used more often. A press wheel or cultipacker can be used to press the seeds and the soil together. This results in the seeds being left in a row with quick access to complete fertilizer. It is preferred over the broadcast method. The earlier it is done the better at this time of the year.

TO FEED HAY ON PASTURE

The practice of continuing to feed hay or silage when the livestock first go to pasture is a good one. With the recent spell of very warm weather, the forage crops will be coming fast, and will be very lush. This high-moisture forage needs some dry matter to go with it for best results. There will be less cases of bloating or scouring when hay, straw, or silage is fed to the animals before they are turned to this new grass. Some producers will have a hayrack in the pasture area and keep it filled with hay for a large part of the pasture season.

TO MANAGE MILKING HERD ON PASTURE

A very critical time of the year for the dairyman is when he first turns his milking herd out to pasture; it takes real careful management to keep the milk from having a "grassy" flavor. Also, if there are any wild garlic plants in the pasture, then it is even more important to manage that herd carefully. The grazing of the herd only a few hours after the milking period is suggested; this means they should be removed from the grazing area at least four to five hours before the next milking time. Also, the barn should be well ventilated at all times. In order to protect milk flavor and quality it is best not to permit the milking herd on pastures including wild garlic; this onion-flavored weed is nourished by the cows and will surely mean trouble in the milk tank.

TO SECURE AN AGRONOMY GUIDE

For Pennsylvania farmers a copy of the 1977-78 Agronomy Guide should be on their desk. This Extension publication covers all of the major crops and gives many important suggestions. It is one of the best booklets for active crop farmers and we urge it be used in daily cropping practices. The suggestions on weed and insect control are very up-to-date and will give guidance to the farming program. One copy per farmer is available at any Extension Office in Pennsylvania.

A word of thanks

At approximately 1 a.m. on March 1, I awoke with a start to find our tobacco shed totally in flames. I hurriedly dressed and left out all of our 135 head of Holsteins. Within 15 minutes the main barn was in flames and soon out of control. Ten fire companies battled the blaze for several hours, but the barns were totally destroyed.

Immediately, neighbors, relatives and friends were on the job of moving our cows to a neighbor's barn to milk. Later more friends stopped to help and some brought straw and hay. Some of them I never knew.

Several days later many more people came to help clean up the mess. Many people brought food, someone donated a tent to feed the many men that helped.

Now the time has come when we wish to thank everyone who gave words of encouragement, labor, food, hay, straw, gifts, and prayers. It has indeed meant much to me and all our family. Again, we thank everyone.

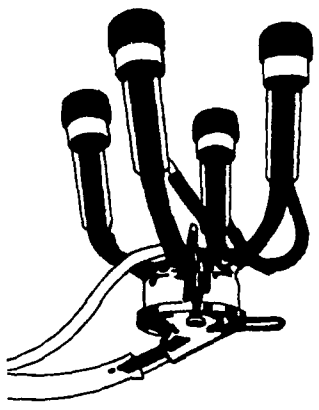
HEADQUARTERS FOR YOUR MILKER SPECIALISTS



See precisely when to remove teat cups!

Universal full view milker

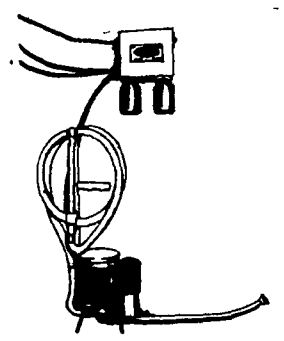
Transparent polysulfone cluster allows you to see milk leaving each teat. You never over-milk because you see milk flow. Large size reduces vacuum fluctuation. Saves time, too.



Throw away that bulk tank brush!

KLEEN-A-TANK

Model 1600

- semi-automatic. Cleans and sanitizes bulk tanks at the touch of a button
- fits all standard tanks, atmospheric or vacuum
- two see-through jars for automatic dispensing of liquid or powdered chemicals

The finest farm milk cooler you can own!

The Girton Ambassador

Lower cooling costs.
Recent tests established cooling costs at 0.4¢ per 100 lbs.

Keeps its cool.
Foamed polyurethane insulation equals 4½" of corkboard on sides, 9" on bottom.

Help when you need it.
Qualified service experts throughout the Northeast are always on call.

A size to fit you.
Available in sizes from 500 to 3000 gallons... with or without automatic washers.

PRE-COOLING SYSTEM by Top Line

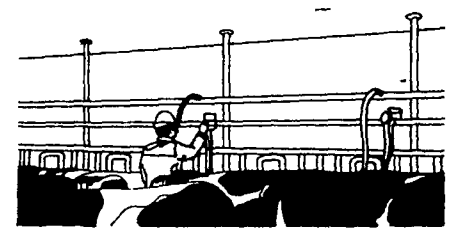
The pre-cooler from Top Line uses well water to cool milk from 20-25 degrees in line before it hits the tank. This in-line pre-cooler can cut compressor time in half, reduce power costs by taking the strain off your condensing unit and relieves the refrigeration load on your bulk tank. Easy to clean in place and easy to install. Sized to fit your system.



Give up lugging milk forever!

Agway Pipeline System

- Pumps milk from stanchion to bulk cooler automatically
- Helps maintain milk quality and reduce bacteria count because milk cools faster
- Reduces costly manhours

Weekly 51 - CATTLE - Compared with the previous weeks close -

Slaughter steers steady, instances 25 cents Higher, heifers fully steady. Cows mostly 50 cents lower, bulls fully steady.

Four day receipts 14,400 as compared 13,100 previous week and 14,500 a year ago. The fed cattle trade showed little net change for the week although there were moderate day - to day price variations; prices were forced downward on an expanded Monday run of 7600 head, but the downturn was recovered on an abbreviated Tuesday supply and held near steady in midweek trading. There was a generally broad demand as most interests came into the week with minimal live inventories on hand,with especially good inquiry for heifers late. Marketings were poorly distributed over the trading period with more than 50 of the four day total arriving on Monday. The overall finish was attractive, with a liberal percentage choice and moderate volume choice and prime. Steers made up approximately 42 and heifers 40. Cows comprised 11 and feeders 6.

STEERS: Two loads and part load choice and prime 3-4 1192-1237 lbs. 38.25, several loads same grade 3-4 1146-1130 lbs. 37 85-38.00 Choice 2-4 975-1275 lbs. closed 37.00-38.00, mainly 37.25 and above. # Guernsey breeders honor three youths

Alan Frantz

EDENVILLE, Pa. - Franklin County Guernsey breeders honored three youths at their annual banquet recently. The three are: John Moore, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn Moore of Chambersburg; Alan Frantz, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Frantz of Waynesboro; and David Mummert, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Mummert of Chambersburg. The three were cited for their achievements with Guernsey cattle, particularly in the show ring.

Moore has a grand champion animal to his credit in the Southcentral Pennsylvania District FFA Dairy Show, and says showing cattle is what he likes best about dairy farming. His present FFA projects include 10 milk cows and three heifers. His family owns 55 head of dairy cattle, of which a third are Guernseys. A part of the young man's philosophy is that the farmer should make a greater effort to keep in touch with the public to tell his story. The adverse publicity on radiation contaminating milk is one example he cited where the farmer could and should take the initiative to see that all the facts are presented.

Frantz told Lancaster Farming during a recent interview that he prefers farming to any other job possibility because he likes to be his own boss. He is currently president of his 4-H club and vice president of his FFA chapter. His family owns 20 Guernseys.

A variety of work is what keeps Mummert interested in farming. His family operates a 180 acre spread and maintains a herd of 60 Guernseys. A 4-H club member, Mummert is owner of several cows and calves.

Nearly 100 farmers and guests attended the Friday night meeting, held here at the Community Center. Among the guests were John Blyholder of the Pennsylvania Guernsey Association, Eugene Schurman from the Franklin County Extension Service, Franklin County's dairy princess - Eileen Crider, and the State Guernsey Princess - Jane McSparran.

Three new directors were elected - Ken Mummert, Harold Hoffeditz, and Marshall Stuff. Incumbent directors are David Layman, Vaughn Moore, Donald Bender, Glenn Mummert, Rodney Stuff, and Gerald Peckman. Peckman serves as president of the County association.

MEDICINE AND MANAGEMENT

By CARL TROOP, VMD

Fundamentals of milk fever

Milk fever, or, more appropriately, 'parturient paresis' (parturition-giving birth) (paresis-partial paralysis) is a problem confronted by every dairyman, and perplexing in that the complete understanding of its cause and prevention still escapes both dairymen and scientists. Indeed, there is a practical limit which one can go in an effort to prevent it.

Parturient paresis usually occurs within 72 hours after calving, occasionally shortly before calving, and infrequently weeks or even months after calving. Average incident is about 10 per cent although problem herds can be as high as 80 per cent, usually with no simple explanation for the difference.

Milk fever is associated with low blood calcium or hypocalcemia. Noraml blood plasma calcium is at a level of 10-11 mg per cent. As the plasma calcium level drops at calving time the initial signs of milk fever appear. At first the cow may appear overly excitable or hyperirritable, with a nervous, stiff gait and overextended hocks. They will shift weight on their rear legs and become wobbly. Appetite will usually be poor and constipation often occurs.

As the plasma calcium dips to around 6-7 per cent, second stage or sternal recumbancy occurs. The cow lays on her sternum, unable to rise, usually with her head turned back to her flank resting on the floor. As plasma calcium drops below five mg per cent, the third stage or lateral recumbancy deyelops where the cow is laying on her side in apparent flaccid paralysis, unable to set up without assistance and props. If untreated at this stage the cow usually goes into a coma and dies.

The temperature of a milk fever cow is usually subnormal but may be increased if exposed to heat or sunshine, as there seems to be an inability to regulate body heat.

Milk fever is usually readily recognized by the dairyman and fairly easy to diagnose. There are, however, conditions which can be confused with milk fever, the most common and important one being acute or septic mastitis. It is very important to examine the milk of a cow near calving and immediately after calving. A delay of only 12 hours could be the difference between a treatable case and one that is beyond hope. A cow with acute or septic mastitis can also be down in sternal recumbancy with low body temperature; however their eyes are often sunken, skin quite tacky, and with a mucoid diarrhea as opposed to milk fever.

Complications of milk fever are many and varied. Metritis (infection of the uterus) can exist along with milk fever, even if the placental membranes have been expelled, and will limit the response to milk fever therapy. Another problem is damage to muscles and nerves, either from thrashing around in the third stage or simply from lying for prolonged periods on concrete surfaces. A cow in terminal stages of milk fever will often regurgitate rumen contents and then inhale them into the lungs resulting in aspiration pneumonia. Such a cow will recover from milk fever only to die from aspiration pneumonia a few days later. This is why it is so important not to give any cow suspected of having milk fever anyhting my mouth as the pharynxz muscles used for swallowing are also paralyzed and whatever is given could go straight into the lungs.

The calcium balance in the animal body is a dynamic system, a state of constant change. Calcium ingested in the food is being absorbed from the gut. Some is lost in the feces, some in the urine. The storehouse of calcium is the bones where it is deposited, while during times of need some is resorbed from the bone to replenish the blood plasma supply. Much calcium is used in the milk, and also for the fetus. In fact, right before parturition a pregnant cow is losing calcium to the fetus at the rate of five grams per day.

It is currently thought that the sudden large requirement of calcium for the manufacture of milk is what precipitates the sudden drop in plasma calcium, thus milk fever. Factors which affect movement and levels of calcium and phosphorus levels, vitamin D, and a hormone produced by the parathyroid gland called parathyroid hormone or PTH. High phosporus blood levels result in decreased calcium blood levels. Vitamin D is essential for proper absorption of calcium from the gut and bone, and PTH regulates resorbtion from the bone. With all this that is known about what regulates calcium balance one would think prevention and treatment should be quite easy.

Earliest successful efforts at treatment occured in 1897 when a veterinarian in Denmark found, to his amazement, that injection of a solution of potassium iodide into the udder alleviated the signs with eventually recovery. He later found that forcing air into the udder along with the iodide gave better results. Later, another veterinarian found that inflation or insufflation of the udder with air along was equally effective. What was happening was that the pressure in the udder was

Six dairy co-ops

Participating as limited partners in MAMMA are Lehigh Valley; Maryland & Virginia Milk Producers Association, Inc., Arlington, Va.; Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers, Inc., Baltimore, Md.; Capitol Milk Producers Cooperative, Laurel, Md.; Valley of Virginia Cooperative Milk Producers Association, Harrisonburg, Va.; and Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative Association, Syracuse, NY.

The six cooperatives represent approximately 4,000 farmer-producers located in Federal Milk Marketing Order No. 4, encompassing eastern Pennsylvania, southern New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and Northern Virginia.

Milk consigned to MAMMA by the limited partners will be processed at the cheese plant of Lehigh Valley Cooperative in Allentown, the only hard cheese reserve processing plant in the Mid-Atlantic area. An estimated 425 million pounds of milk are expected to flow through the facility in 1977, when an excess supply of milk is anticipated.

"By keeping excess milk in the Federal Order No. 4 area," Barry said, "prices to farmers for milk will remain stable, with level prices assured during periods of both short and excess supply. Price stabilization also will go a long way toward keeping farmers in the dairy business, a problem with which the entire industry has been faced.

"An assured supply of milk from farmers will, in turn, help keep prices to consumers stabilized," he emphasized.

Barry termed the concept of a marketing cooperative for dairy cooperatives "a progressive step forward for the cooperative movement." It is in line with the Federal Order system where supply is pooled to assure the best possible use of milk at a fair price to the farmer and ultimately to the consumer.

"It also puts to the most efficient use an existing cheese conversion plant to provide processing facilities for excess milk," he added.

MAMMA will be under management of an Advisory Committee composed of the general manager of each participating cooperative. C. Irvin Horrocks, Jr., of the Maryland & Virginia Milk Producers Association, has been named chairman of the Advisory Committee.

Responsibility for manufacturing operations will be retained by Lehigh Valley Cooperative Farmers.

Chapter president sweeps show at FFA banquet

By SALLY BAIR
Feature Writer

KINZERS, Pa. - For Dale Miller, Gap R2, the 21st annual awards banquet of the Pequea Valley Future Farmers of America was a climax to two years as chapter president.

Dale was presented with the Dekalb Agricultural Achievement Award, the American Agriculturist Award, and the Lancaster County Bankers Award, presented by Donald Eby, Farmers First Bank, Intercourse.

Miller also received the Keystone Farmer degree this year, won a FFA Foundation award medal in dairy production, and was a county officer. He said, "My FFA experience was very enjoyable. I gained a lot of responsibility, and I'm really excited about getting the awards."

Other top FFA awards went to Ken Kreiser, Gap R2, star greenhand Don Bowman, Ronks R2, star chapter farmer; Mike Martin, Honeybrook R2, star Red Rose farmer, and Elvin Weaver, Kinzers R1, chapter star farmer. Weaver was also a Keystone Farmer degree winner.

An honorary chapter farmer award was given to John Harsh, recognizing his help in making placements in the FFA work experience program.

FFA Foundation award medals were given to the following: Elvin Weaver, agricultural sales service; Galen Sweigart, agricultural processing; Steve Koser, agricultural mechanics; Larry Stoltzfus, beef production; Don Bowman, crop production; Mike Martin, diversified livestock production; Tom Summers, forest management; Jim Zimmerman, home and farmstead improvement; Dave Rynier, horse proficiency; Jay Beyer, placement in agricultural production; Bob Finger, poultry production; Harry Kreiser, public speaking; Jeff Sherman, sheep production; Richard Neff, swine production.

Gerald Metzler, Christiana R2, provided an entertaining and challenging slide presentation on his adventures on the Work Experience Abroad program sponsored by the National FFA Foundation. Metzler, former state FFA treasurer, said he encouraged more members to apply for the program. He said, "I can recommend it to anybody. You really gain from the experience. It helps you understand yourself better and helps you understand others in a different environment."

Metzler lived in Niederwichbach in a valley nine miles south of Berne in Switzerland for 3½ months. He said, "I was part of the family." The whole experience, he said, "opened a new chapter in my life." In addition to helping his host father, Metzler said he kept detailed records of the hours he worked and the kinds of work he did on the 27 acre farm. Five crops were grown

Sixth annual meeting held by Lehigh Co. FFA

By LAUREL SCHAEFFER
Berks County Reporter

SCHNECKSVILLE, Pa.— For many members of the Lehigh County Chapter FFA, March 26 will hold special memories. It was the evening of their 6th annual banquet where they were bestowed awards for their outstanding accomplishments. Nearly 300 people were served a family style meal prepared by the Junior Restaurant Association of the Lehigh County Vocational-Technical School.

Those in attendance included 11 Pennsylvania State FFA officers and the state FFA Princess, Marcia Hess. Randy Ranck, state FFA president presented a welcoming speech in which he thanked parents and supporters of the FFA for all that they have done.

Frederic Stillwagen, advisor, awarded special medals to; Grant Grim, Scott Koenig, and Robert Kennedy for their achievements in representing Pennsylvania in the International Livestock Judging Contest.

Proficiency awards were presented to Grant Grim for beef production; Diane Miller, sheep production; David Kerschner, diversified livestock; Robin Cary, horse proficiency; and Darlene Stoudt, forest management.

stopping production of milk, even forcing some of the calcium back into the system and restoring blood levels to near normal. For year this was the treatment of milk fever and in some areas is still used quite successfully today. Later calcium salts and calcjum gluconate were developed and have stood the test of time as an adequate treatment in most cases.

Prevention, then, has been the problem. Delayed, or incomplete milking after calving has often been tried in order to maintain pressure within the udder, but it does not always prevent an attack and may aggravate a latent infection into acute clinical mastitis. And of a choice of the two, the milk fever is usually the easier to treat. Massive doses of Vitamin D in the feed for five to seven days preparturition will reduce the incidence, but if calving is misjudged and administration is stopped more than four days before calving, susceptibility is increased. Dosing for longer periods will not work because of the danger of Vitamin D toxicity. Injection of crystalline Vitamin D intravenously about eight days before calving will also help, but will sometimes result in a severe reaction.

The feeding of high phosporus, low calcium diets during late pregnancy is the latest area of concentration for milk fever prevention in problem herds. Keeping calcium levels low during the three weeks of pregnancy keeps the parathyroid gland active turning out hormone, and this seems to be one of the most important factors in preventing the calcium drops at calving time. Feeding a high calcium, low phosphorus diet before calving itself maintains an adequate blood level, the parathyroid gland does not have to work and gets lazy. Then the cow suddenly starts making milk, needs large volumes of calcium, and the hormones are not there which are necessary to supply it. But this procedure, too, is not without its pitfalls. It is often difficult to devise such a ration in practical form to feed only to cows for the last three weeks of pregnancy, and if continued longer periods in high producing cows could dangerously deplete the body's calcium reserve. But in a problem herd it might be worth considering. Consultation with your veterinarian as to what the underlying cause might be is the best place to start.

Milk fever is a problem that is far from being solved, or even understood. If the incidence on any particular farm is around 10 per cent or less the most practical solution is usually just to live with it; watch known problem cows at frequent intervals, not to go away all day leaving unattended a just fresh cow which always gets milk fever, returning home to find her just about dead and expecting your veterinarian to be there in three minutes. Have a neighbor or somebody look in on problem cows if you must go away from home for a few hours. Early treatment is the best prevention of complications. If milk fever seems to be a greater problem than you think it should be, consult your veterinarian and decide if the problem is serious enough to attempt any of the preventative measures. Remember, the attempt to completely eliminate a problem such as milk fever, if not too serious, may be less practical and cause more complications than putting up with a few cases of milk fever itself.

Shorthorn officers chosen

OMAHA, Neb.— The New York and Pennsylvania Shorthorn Associations have elected their officers for the year. These state chapters are part of the over 40 affiliates of the American Shorthorn Association on the state level.

Bill O'Connor, Jr., Locke, was named president of the New York Shorthorn Association. Assisting him will be David Reid, Adams Center, vice president and Doug Lamphier, Locke, secretary-treasurer.

Directors were selected for the four main areas of the state. They are: Central—Walt Millard, Union Springs; South - Joe Fairchild; North--Lisle Conway, West Monroe; West--Howard Snethen, DeWittville.

Serving as president of the Pennsylvania Shorthorn Breeders Association will be George Hunter, Stoneboro. Vice president is Jim Fogal, Nellyton and Dick McElhaney, Hookstown, is secretary-treasurer.

Directors serving three-year terms are: Lloyd Hunter, Adamsville; Jane Kerr, Saxonburg; Ron Deemer, Conneaut; Dave Whiting, Edinburg.

Poultry down slight bit

HARRISBURG, PA.-- Pennsylvania poultry production continued at levels above last year during the week ending March 19, but showed a slight decline from the previous week, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

Placements of broiler chicks in the commonwealth were 1,727,000. The placements were 23 per cent above the corresponding week a year earlier, but three per cent below the previous week. Average placements during the past 10 weeks were 25 percent above a year earlier.

Placements of broiler chicks in the 21 key poultry producing states were 69,109,000 during the survey week. These placements were about the same as the previous week, but three per cent above the same week a year ago.

Average placements in the 21 key poultry states during the past 10 eeeks were five per cent above a year ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Frame, owners of the Vintage Sales Stables since March of 1976, received a number of congratulatory messages and flowers from friends and customers who took note of their achievements.

New owners lift Vintage sales

VINTAGE, Pa. – Mr. and Mrs. Robert Frame, who acquired a controlling interest in the Vintage Sales Stables in March of 1976, recently completed their first year in business, here, and are pleased with the results.

Things have been turned around, Frame indicated. "We had a good year – a prosperous year – and broke records in terms of the head of cattle sold. Calendar year 1976, for example, saw 1780 more head of cattle sold than 1975. During the first year of operation, Frame had set himself a goal of selling 52,000 head of cattle. Despite opinions which indicated it was too high a mark, the Frames and their aides managed to sell 52,274 head.

Frame manages the market, while his wife, Elaine, is secretary-treasurer. The family has had considerable experiences with sales and auctions in Chester County before they acquired the Lancaster County livestock market.

Aside from increasing sales and adding a few new ones, such as a feeder pig sale and hay and straw auctions, the Frames also have undertaken a number of improvement projects. A few are: restructuring of unloading facilities to speed up handling time and cut waiting; closer management to reduce animal losses, installation of a stainless steel floor on the scales, a double-deck calf chute, and roof renovations.

With all of that, the Frames still aren't done. Displaying a keen interest in their sales facilities, the husband and wife team is considering some expansion programs. A definite goal is to expand the hay, straw, and feeder pig sales.

Some changes and improvement in management account for the rosier financial picture, Frame indicated. He noted that animal losses and deaths the year before he took over amounted to $11,000. That figure has been reduced substantially. Another change which is illustractive of the changes, is that manure from the Stables used to be given away. Now it's sold.

Frame considers his auction facilities to be one of the best on the East Coast, pointing out that Vintage topped the fat steer market for 35 weeks out of 52 during their first year. He gives part of the credit to the fact that his steer sales are on Tuesday, which "seems to be the best day," he said.

Mrs. Frame is quick to point out that their six children help with the work at Vintage whenever they can. They range in age from 18 to 11. The owners of a 200-acre steer farm in Chester County, the Frames are tackling their enterprise with visible enthusiasm.

The firm is planning on hiring a second field representative, Frame said, to help Earl Bair, who has been instrumental in pulling sales at Vintage to new heights.

Auctioneers at Vintage are Dale Stoltzfus, Kersey Bradley and Alvin Horning.

LARA

off yesterday afternoon. The announcement was made during a public meeting here at LARA's transfer station.

The Barleys were contacted by Lancaster Farming on Friday morning. According to John Barley, neither he or his attorney James Heinly have received a written statement to the effect that the 58 acres will not be taken, but they expect it's forthcoming and are not doubting the verbal message. Barley expressed gratitude and relief over the triumph, making special mention of all the public's effort which in all likelihood had the most to do with LARA's decision. A campaign initiated by the Lancaster County Poultry Federation serves as an example of the latter. According to a spokeman at the Lancaster County Commissioners' office, 4132 letters had been received by them as of Friday morning.

The letters urged the commissioners to persuade LARA's nine members to save the Barley farmland.

The Barleys are now looking for a written agreement which will prevent the same issue from coming up again in the future. Heinly reportedly is working on that.

A four hour meeting held in Harrisburg on Thursday morning brought together LARA's members, the Lancaster County Commissioners, the Barleys, the House Ag Committee, and numerous other legislators and officials. Also represented was a member of a refuse disposal association, which is encouraging research on the matter. LARA stated Thursday afternoon that they will be looking into a number of alternatives and have actually begun to do so, according to LARA spokemen.

Barley, who attended both the morning meeting in the State Capitol, as well as the afternoon meeting at the transfer station, said a lot of "interesting, good, and constructive information" was discussed at the meeting in Harrisburg. The scope of the conference, he told Lancaster Farming, was land use in general, with his particular situation coming up frequently as an example. Lancaster County legislators were present to listen in a contribute. Speaking of the entire group, Barley stated: "Those people are really taking a good hard look at some of the different problems involving farmland."

4-H members to take part in activities at Capitol

LANCASTER, Pa. Young adults from the Commonwealth's 67 counties, including five from Lancaster County, will have an opportunity to broaden their knowledge of the functions of state government when they participate in State 4-H Capitol Days in Harrisburg, on April 18-19.

The county delegates selected to take part in the statewide event are: Robin Esbenshade, Manheim; Jody Henkel, Strasburg; Susan Martin, Ephrata; Sonya Patterson, Lancaster, and Philip Risser, Leola.

While in Harrisburg, they will recieve a guided tour of the State Capitol Building, visit their local legislators' offices, and participate in educational workshops geared to increase their understanding of the legislative process.

The 4-H members also will visit one of the following Commonwealth departments or agencies: Community Affairs, Environmental Resources, Agriculture, Education, PennDot, Revenue, Justice, Public Utilities Commission and Health.

Local lawmakers will be guests of the county delegation at a special breakfast on April 19. At this function, 4-H members and legislators will discuss local issues and define the purposes of the 4-H program.

Explaining the purpose of State 4-H Capital Days, which began in 1965, Frank E. Bortz, 4-H specialist at State University, said the event is part of the Extension Service youth citizenship program that helps members to become more responsible adults.

Think more corn profit/acre. Think Unipel® 20-10-10 fertility.

Across the Corn Belt, more and more farm operators know that a corn fertility program including Ortho's Unipel 20-10-10 pays off consistently with higher corn profits per acre.

Late Winter and early Spring preplant applications of Ortho Unipel 20-10-10 have helped increase returns over fertilizer investment up to $86 an acre more than blends.. and up to $40 an acre more than a liquid program.

Five key ingredients in each pellet of Unipel 20-10-10 benefit corn with an uninterrupted season-long flow of Nitrogen, Phosphorus and Potash. Both Nitrogen and Phosphorus are present in quick and sustained feeding forms to provide both immediate and continued nutrient feeding. And adequate Potash rounds out the balanced Unipel diet to develop strong roots, sturdy stalks and leaves.

You can make unique, pelleted Unipel 20-10-10 your complete corn fertility program, or just part of it, depending on your yield goals and soil conditions

We'll recommend the best Unipel fertility program for you to make the big difference in your corn profits per acre.

York satisfied

d urged that the support price be set at 85 per cent of parity. But he added, "We are happy the secretary went to 83 per cent."

York explained to members that parity is a reflection of the cost of producing milk, and under the law must be set between 75 and 90 per cent.

York assailed the "adverse publicity" given the announcement of the increased price support which states that the price of milk to consumers will increase by $.06. York said his reply to that is, "Humbug. Raising the support price does not automatically raise the price to the consumer."

He pointed out that the support price increase "might someday affect the ice the farmer gets and might someday affect the bottled price of milk." He added, "If the support prices does increase, milk will be where it was a year ago." Last year, he said, consumers were paying $.12 more per gallon than they do now.

York said, "Farmers are affected by inflation and they are affected by rising costs." They cannot become more and more efficient each year to meet these rising costs, and therefore he feels the 83 per cent figure is a good one.

He said, "If we get some results from the increase, it won't affect the blend price for a month or two. If we get results, it could affect the blend price by a $.30 improvement on a 12-month basis." York said dairymen might look forward to a blend price which is $.30 higher than 1976, or around $10 per hundredweight.

Alred E. Wanner, Narvon R 2, retiring Eastern director, preceded York's address with a caution to the dairymen, saying, "I think we have to be careful that we don't destroy something that is good. We must hold production and have the parity price operate as it should. If we over-produce and crowd ourselves out of the market it will be very hard for the Department of Agriculture to maintain this support. It is up to us to use it wisely and it is very important for us to control production ourselves.

"The support price will help us, but if we produce large surpluses we could be in trouble. We can't expect to maintain good prices and over produce."

Wanner's term expires in May, and York praised him as a "man of good judgement," and a "man of integrity".

York told the members that Eastern marketed 3½ billion pounds of milk last year worth over $300,000 million. Eastern is the largest cooperative in Pennsylvania, and the largest in the Northeast, he said.

York noted that Class I sales are down 5½ per cent, and with production up, there is an unfavorable supply and demand relationship in the industry. He said stocks of butter, cheese, and skim milk powder are all up, with nearly twice as much skim milk powder in storage as in January, 1976. Stocks of butter and cheese are also up drastically.

Because of this unfavorable situation, York said that over 500 dairymen have been told by handlers that they will no longer have a market after April 1. He pointed out that Easter guarantees a market for members' milk, and in situations where non-members produce good quality milk and meet certain other standards, Eastern will attempt to help them out.

Last year York said the co-op put 150 million pounds of milk into cheese, and he said he expects to process twice as much this year. They will begin a lease-rental agreement on a butter-powder plant in Middlebury Center, Pa., "to make sure there is a home for all milk."

York added, "We have a big obligation when we guarantee a market."

York said, "I want to impress upon you - do not leave your cooperative organization; do not leave Eastern." He said it is time for dairymen to rededicate their interest in their cooperative. He said he considers it nearly a "dishonest act" on a farmer's part to get past the flush season and then withdraw from cooperative membership. "That is an act which is unfair to both parties."

Without a strong Eastern Milk Producers Co-op, York said, the New York Federal Milk Marketing Order may have a difficult future enduring problems. One potential problem arises from the fact that nearly 50 per cent of the dairy farmers in the New York market do not belong to any cooperative organization. Of those that do, a majority belong to Eastern, York said.

York said, "The Federal Order cannot exist without a strong organization. If the order should falter, your blend price could drop. You must develop loyalty to your cooperative."

Berks conservation dinner attended by 250

By LAUREL SCHAEFFER

SHARTLESVILLE, Pa. — The Berks County Annual Conservation Banquet sponsored by the Berks County Conservation District and Agricultural Stabilization Conservation Committee was held last month at the Grange Hall, here.

The program was attended by 250 and emceed by Jack Gounder of WEEC radio. Gounder was surprised with a birthday cake from the Conservation District and a plaque from the County Commissioners for all of his outstanding service to the Conservation Society and the community.

After dinner the program continued with remarks by Mary Ann Rimby, chairman of the Berks County Conservation District. The chairman summarized the District's activities over the past year. Some of the programs which were highlighted included a poster contest in the local schools, the sponsoring of TV shows on local stations, and the display at the area mall during National Hunting and Fishing week.

Rimby also thanked everyone for making the tree seedling sale a success. More than 63,000 seedlings were sold this year. Other highlightsd included the conservation float which was displayed in various parades and at the mall, the speaking contest which was held in conjuction with the FFA and most importantly, winning the Goodyear Conservation Award.

Allen Keeney, Berks County's Outstanding Conservation Cooperator, is presented a plaque by Mary Ann Rimby, conservation district chairman. Looking on are other award winners — Clyde Baver, 25 years of service to ASCS; Don Hartman, outstanding conservationist in Berks County; and Henry Bohn Jr., county ASCS executive director.

Paul Keeney, chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization Conservation Committee also made a few remarks. Keeney discussed the budget and highlighted the multiflora rose and Johnson grass eradication programs. The chairman urged the control of Johnson grass which is spreading in all sections of the southeastern part of the state and in Maryland as well.

ASCA awards were presented to outstanding individuals by Charles D. Hogan Jr. Clyde K.A. Baver received an award for his 25 years of outstanding service; Paul H. Keeney for 20 years of service; and Mark S. Balthaser for 10 years of service.

Clyde Baver then presented awards to outstanding cooperators for the district. The cooperators were: Earl Gerlach; Kenneth B Kissinger; Charles Strause; and Wilbur Stricker. Allen E. Keeney, Jr. was named outstanding cooperator. Mary Ann Rimby presented Forest Fire Prevention Awards to John Reinhart and Robert Prince for their many years of voluntary dedication to portray Smokey the Bear. These men have given up much of their free time to travel about the area to educate the public on forest fire prevention.

William "Don" Hartman was presented the Outstanding Conservationist of Berks County Award for free time he has donated to conservation.

Certificates of Appreciation were presented to George Landis and Owen Stout of the Reading Eagle and to Jack Gounder of WEEU for their service and publicity for conservation, and for all the little "extras" they have done.

After the awards presentation door prizes were awarded. John Schueller presented a slide presentation on the District's Visit to the Goodyear Farm in Arizona.

Farmers' story to be repeated in York this April

YORK, Pa. – Following the first success of telling the farmer's story at the York mall in March, the York County Farmer's Association Women's Committee plans its second project for April 16 and 17 at the third annual Peach Blossom Festival at Gatchellville's Maple Lawn Farms.

Setting up in the cold storage for complete weather protection and flexibility, the committee will be able to add more animals to their commodity displays. The Stewartstown 4-H Club will sponsor a petting zoo in conjunction with the PFA group.

In addition to the dairy calf, incubator peepees, and baby pigs, the exhibit will be able to house a 500 pound beef calf, goats, lambs, and various other small animals for children's delight including kittens, puppies, ducks, chickens, hampsters, fish, and many others.

The women are also seeking county farmers who are willing to open their farms to the public for similar farm-city weekends where the existing commodity exhibits can get more exposure. The Women's Committee will work with the farmers who are willing to sponsor such events with publicity and complete set up of their agriculture promotion units.

Also, many of the units are portable and suitable for school presentations upon request.

Long awaited FFA awards night held at E-town

By JOANNE SPAHR

ELIZABETHTOWN, PA. – "All year the members have been waiting and working hard for tonight," stated Jeff Aungst, Elizabethtown R2. Aungst, who is the president of the Elizabethtown Chapter of the Future Farmers of America, as well as Lancaster County's Star Red Rose Farmer, made this remark last Friday evening at the chapter's annual banquet held in the Elizabethtown Fire Hall. At this dinner meeting, guests and member's enjoyed the musical entertainment of "New Song," a singing group from Lancaster School of the Bible, and members anticipated the bestowing of awards.

This year's Star Greenhand is Ken Long, Elizabethtown R3. Noted for his outstanding achievements in his first year of FFA, he also won the greenhand speech contest.

The Star Chapter Farmer award went to Jere Rutt, Elizabethtown R1., who took home an armful of four other awards before the evening was through. He received trophies for winning the upper division speech contest and for taking first place in the county small engine contest. He also earned a production award for home improvement, and a silver medal for the state project book contest.

Along with Rutt, Duane Hernley, Elizabethtown R1, took a trophy for his abilities in the upper division speech contest, as well as a production award for sheep, a gold medal for his state project book, and a trophy in the chapter crop contest for mixed hay.

Jeff Aungst also took home several awards. His most impressive was a trophy for being named Star Red Rose Farmer for Lancaster County. He also received a $15 monetary gift from the Lancaster County Bankers Association, a Keystone Farmer pin, a dairy production award, a gold medal for state project book contest, and a corn yield contest award.

Aungst's parents were also given a special plaque of appreciation for helping their son attain the degree of Keystone Farmer.

A second plaque of appreciation was given to the parents of Ronald Forrey, the chapter's second Keystone farmer. Forrey also received the Lancaster County Bankers Award as well as a Keystone Farmer pin, and a production award for swine.

Other award recipients were: Mervin Minnich, Elizabethtown R4, for diversified livestock; Barry Heisey, Elizabethtown R4, beef; Arlen Keener, Elizabethtown R1, poultry production; Mark Liskey, Elizabethtown R4 fish and wildlife conservation; Brian Chapman, Elizabethtown R1, for soil and water conservation; John Seward, Elizabethtown R3, for crop production; Paul Walmer, 320 Turnpike Rd., for processing; Robin Becker, Elizabethtown R4 for ag mechanics; Joe Guttschall, for placement in ag production; Gerald Gruber for first place in county small engine contest; Arlen Keener for gold medal in state project book contest and alfalfa hay; Barry Heisey, for ear corn; Ken Swope, Marietta R1, for corn silage; Paul Walmer, potatoes; Don Dohner, Elizabethtown R1, tobacco; Robin Becker, Red Rose certificate; and John Seward, Red Rose certificates; and Mary Seward, Elizabethtown R1, second in state pleasure horse contest.

Honorary membership in the chapter was also given to Dustin Peters, principal of Elizabethtown High School. The group cited him for the help he has given them in the Food for America program.

Dairy challenges outlined

ROSEMONT, Ill. - "Inroads by imitation milk and fabricated dairy products cannot be taken lightly," Glenn Lake, president of United Dairy Industry Association (UDIA), told 142 delegates and over 550 of their friends, guests and family members attending the sixth annual UDIA meeting at the Orlando Hyatt House, Orlando, Florida, March 13-16, 1977.

"Imitation milk will always be a threat. New products are almost continuously creeping into a market somewhere in the country. The technology for making chemical foods is improving and we need to monitor every new product entering a market."

John W. Sliter, UDIA executive vice president, described additional challenges facing the dairy industry, i.e., growth of the powdered soft drink mix business and "away-from-home" eating, and the probability of the government establishing a national nutrition policy. He said plans and programs using money efficiently and effectively must be developed to meet these challenges.

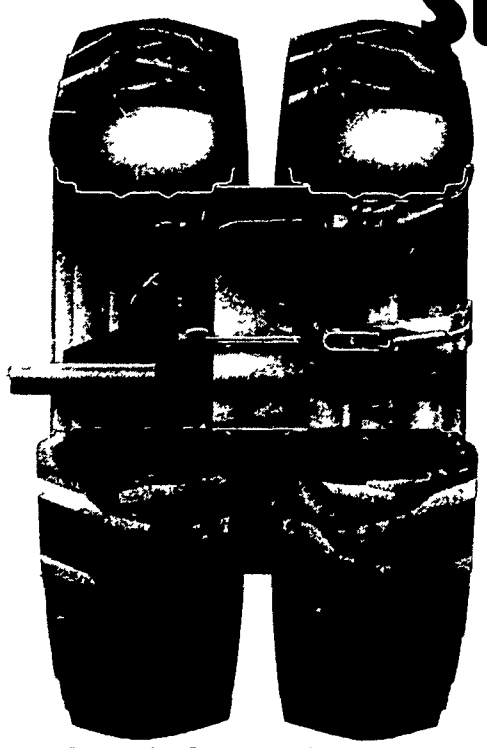
Quick change duals with strength



You know the many versatile and time saving advantages of using quick change duals. Now with Snap-On Over-the-Rim duals you also get strength. Unverferth has eliminated all of the weak points, commonly associated with open center duals.

Unverferth's no weld method of attaching clamps eliminates the most common problem area. There are no attaching bars or clamps welded to the dual to break or bend. The clamp holds the dual in place at the strongest point, between the tire and rim. Over-center action locks the clamp so it can't loosen until you release it. The Wedg-Lok spacer band seats itself in the tractor rim, taking the stress from the tractor lugs. Snap-On Over-the-Rim duals are the only duals with both quick change versatility and strength. For further information on any of Unverferth's duals write:

there, but sugar beets and potatoes were the largest, and Metzler helped with the harvest. He explained that much of the machinery used was owned by a cooperative, because most farms cannot support the purchase of large pieces of machinery. He added that much farm equipment is run by electricity. He also said, "I did a lot of hand work, and worked harder than I ever did."

There were 12 cows in the family herd and five heifers. Milking machines were used, but one of Metzlers jobs was to take the milk cans to a central cooperative milk house for cooling in the morning and evening following the milking. There, he said, the milk was strained and weighed in kilograms.

On the way home from the cooperative, he said he would often pick up bread for the family. It was a relatively cheap $.25 for a 2.2 pound loaf. He said a butcher visited the home each week.

Metzler washed the milking utensils. He said the best cow in the herd produced 70 pounds of milk. He said further that a two-year-old heifer might cost from $2000 to $2500 and at 10 years of age it could be sold for $1200. The breeds were dual-purpose.

The manure pile is a central feature of Swiss farms, and Metzler said they accumulated the manure and disposed of it twice annually. In the meantime, he said, "I learned to throw it and stack it and even to throw it gracefully."

He was impressed with the beauty of Switzerland, and the well-kept homes with flower boxes. He related that European housewives usually had two separate gardens - a flower garden and a vegetable garden.

Metzler has already returned to visit his host family, on his honeymoon.

Both Principal John King and Superintendent Reginald Remley praised the students and their parents for their interest and help at the school. Remley said, "We have a warm spot for FFA - these members are some of the very finest students in the high school. They are good, hard workers, willing to serve and carry their weight in the academic field."

FFA Chapter advisors are Holly Fuess and Clair Witwer.

Inter-State district 8 meets

By LAUREL SCHAEFFER Berks County Reporter

HONEY BROOK, Pa. The Honey Brook Fire Hall was the gathering place for the District 8 Inter-State Milk Producers annual meeting and banquet. More than 100 people attended.

Fieldman Russell T. Rooks gave the members his report. Rooks emphasized the importance of sanitaion and keeping the bacteria counts down. "You are only doing yourself a favor," Rooks told the farmers. "Also, keep wide awake on antibiotics," he stressed.

A farmer was recently sued because antibiotics were found in his milk, Rooks said. The fieldman also reminded the area farmers to be sure to have automatic refrigeration on their bulk tanks and agitators which operate at least 5 minutes out of every hour.

Director Andrew Stoltzfus also gave the area milk producers his report. Stoltzfus discussed the substantial rises in the milk prices over the year, and pointed out that milk production was up eight to 12 percent nationally.

Stoltzfus also discussed the effects of the last year's new releases on nuclear fallout and the gas shortage on milk sales. The alternatives available on where to go with the milk where also mentioned. Stoltzfus told the area farmers how Inter-State responded when Dietrich's Dairy in Reading was cut off from their gas supply.

The farmers were also shown where their money was going. Three and three-tenths cents out of the eight cents collected by Inter-State are used for operating cost, the director said. The other portion, 4.7 cents will be returned to the farmer, he continued. "Advertising costs us 21 cents per capita," Stoltzfus added. "There have been changes in our thinking towards prime-time TV," he continued. It is too expensive, so we are using other alternatives. A new slogan, "Take a coffee break - drink milk" is starting to be pushed, he concluded.

The director then introduced the vice-president of Inter-State Milk Producers' Cooperative, Daniel L. Martin. In addressing the group, Martin reminded everyone of the 200th anniversiary of our country. In continuing, Martin said we still have the same moral principles that we did then. "We learned from our past mistakes," he continued, "and we will make mistakes in the future but we can correct them and keep moving forward."

"Face the challenges," he said, "we have responsibilities," The harvest doesn't come in without work, he continued. "Dairying is one of the few professions left that is still a family enterprise," Martin stated, "this unites families and strong families make strong nations," he continued.

Martin proceeded by telling the area farmers of the co-operative's origin a and how it helped to stabilize the milk price. "Last winter, he told the dairyman, "we had one crisis after another. "Milk is a commodity that is sensitive to bad publicity, he reminded the dairymen, but he continued, we will insure the members of Inter-State a market for their milk.

Presently the cooperative is planning to join the Maryland Cooperative in building a milk drying plant. The reason for this, the vice-president explained, is because the federal government has milk support prices but not on fresh milk. It has to be powdered whole milk, Martin said. This way members' milk will always have a market outlet. The construction for the plant is scheduled to start soon with a target date for completion by April 1, 1978.

Martin also told the dairymen of the recent acquisition of the quality control laboratory which was purchased in October. The income from the laboratory is running ahead of expectations at present, Martin said.

The vice-president concluded his discussion by mentioning the new developements in advertising also. "our main thrust is still on 'Milk is a Natural' theme," Martin said, but we now have a "Magic Cow". Powdered soft drinks are one of the largest growth industries right now, Martin said, and we are going to advertise with fruit flavored milk drinks, and have the "Magic Cow" as the theme.

Elections were also held at the meeting for local officers and delagates. The new officers for Morgantown are; Veron Beiler, president; Truman Hertzler, vice-president; Amos Blank, secretary-treasurer; the delegates are: Charles Gable, Titus Kurtz, and Paul Brubacher. The alternate delegates are; Donald Horning, Ivan S. Stoltzfus, and Louis Stoltzfus Jr.

The new officers for Kimberton are; Vernon Ruth, president; Stanley Guest, vice-president; Robert Hewitt, secretary-treasurer. The delegates are; Harold Kulp and Horace Mower, while the alternates are Joesph Kulp and Stanley Guest.

Co-ops restrained

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Efforts to limit alleged anticompetitive practices of cooperatives "took a major step forward" recently with the introduction of legislation to amend the Clayton Act, according to A.J. Nixon, president of the National Association for Milk Marketing Reform.

The amendment, introduced by Congress John Seiberling (D. Ohio) would modify Section 6 of the Act so that this antitrust legislation would apply to the operation of cooperatives, in the same fashion as it does to other business entities.

In effect, the amendment would allow the Department of Justice and the courts to examine anticompetitive practices resulting from mergers and price agreements. This authority would apply to all existing cooperatives' operations as well as future developments.

Manure management studied by E-town farmers

for Lancaster Farming

ELIZABETHTOWN, Pa. – The need for careful planning, selection of a suitable system, and building to specifications were the highlights of the manure management meeting held last month by the Elizabethtown Young Farmers. Addressing the group was Assistant County Agent Alan Bair, followed by a panel of farmers who have established up-to-date manure handling systems of their own.

There are many systems for handling manure – liquid, semi-solid, bedding pack, slatted dams, and combinations of these. One of the main problems with various liquid systems is that structures are well ahead of pumps and equipment in design. Bair noted that liquid systems have been in operation for a number of years already, but not enough to really prove the best design in pumps, agitators or tank spreaders. Getting the manure into storage and storing it has been mastered better than getting it out.

Of the liquid facilities built in the southeast corner of Pennsylvania, only one has a permit from the Department of Environmental Resources. A permit is needed for 250,000 gallon capacity operations unless practices are followed as set forth in DER's manure management manual. Bair states "Of all the operations I have known, no farmer has complained that his is too big." Anyone considering a storage structure should plan for 200-day capacity.

The major considerations

around any feedlot are how water will be handled and how much of it will have to be dealt with to avoid run-off. Of the 36 inch average annual rainfall received here, only about one-third of it will actually run off a feedlot, since many rains come as showers that evaporate. So a liquid system can use run-off water to insure adequate mixing if there is no parlor water to collect. A livestockman can figure on two cubic feet or 15 gallons of waste per day from a 1400-pound animal.

Liquid systems should be down to 8 per cent solids to be pumped efficiently. Dairy manure without bedding is about 15 per cent solids, so water must be added. Many feedlots have drainage problems that can be funnelled into a liquid structure to aid in liquification. Extra manure storage should be allowed for in pits or upright structures because the bottom 12 inches has a tendancy to cake up and offset storage room. Uprights should not be filled to within two inches of the top in case of heavy rain and resulting overflow.

Two factors of liquid manure exist that bother many farmers. First is the necessity to haul two loads to water for every load of manure solids; secondly, the need to maintain two handling systems if younger cattle are raised separately from the main operation. Another disadvantage is the requirement for two large tractors to empty out the structure.

As a result some dairymen are building earthen bank storages or concrete pads with a slatted dam to reduce the amount of water that must be loaded and spread. The manure in these storages is handled as a semi-solid.

Participating on the panel were Brian Risser of Bainbridge, and Christian Becker, Elizabethtown. Risser explained that he and his father and brother, in partnership, felt they needed a system which would allow them to haul manure when ground and field conditions permit, and to maximize the fertilizer value of their manure by incorporating it into the soil immediately. With their 300,000 gallon Slurrystore, the Rissers apply 120 tons per acre after corn silage and seed rye for its value as cover crop and silage. In the Spring rye fields are topdressed and another 10-20 tons per acre are applied before plowing or chiseling for corn.

For Chris Becker, with a 40-cow operation, a system that could make use of his present equipment and slope away from the barn was desired. So Becker travelled to see many operations to decide what best suited his farm and his management. This Summer the Beckers will have an earthen-bank slatted dam erected. Having visited many new manure systems and studying the alternatives, Becker feels that the right system for your operation and building to specification are of foremost importance.

In summary, Extension Agent Bair emphasized the need for safety around manure systems, especially pits, to beware of gases, and humans and animals falling into them. Bair also emphasized that a liquid system does not allow for an operator to assign his hired man with a free hour to go haul out some manure. Many systems need up to a half-day of agitation before emptying, and all systems need close management for satisfactory results.

Red Lion Grange meets

RED LION, Pa. - Red Lion Grange 1781, held an open meeting on March 19 to celebrate its 58th anniversary. The program consisted of presentations of Silver Star certificates, the Community Citizen award (to a Non-Grange-Member), and the Grange Foundation ceremony. Fifty-two people attended. Thirty-five Red Lion Grange members, with 13 guests, and four visiting grangers. The visiting grangers were the National Grange Master, John W. Scott and Mrs. Scott, and Mr. and Mrs. David Scott.

Silver Star certificates were presented to Lee Burns, master of Red Lion Grange, and Gladys Stabley, a member of the finance committee. Those not present who will also receive their certificates are Lois Myers and Ann Logue. Red Lion members who had previously received their certificates were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bupp, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Goodyear, Mrs. Edna Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Lanius, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Leibhart, Edward Massa, Mr. and Mrs. John Massa, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Miller, Mrs. Helen Sweitzer, and Samuel Ruff.

The Community Citizen Nite award was presented to R. Gregory Lau, Red Lion, R4. A Certificate of Recognition from the National Grange was presented to him by the lecturer, Gladys Sheffer, as well as a Pennsylvania State Grange history book and a floral plant. Lau was chosen because of his contribution to the welfare, happiness, and betterment of his community. He is an American history teacher in the York-Suburban High School, as well as the leader of the Ore Valley 4-H Club, a member of the Salem U.M.Church, where he serves a teacher of the "Spares and Pairs" Sunday school class, and a member-at-large on the Church Council. He also writes articles for farm and sports magazines.

Special guest speaker was the National Master, who spoke on the Grange, and the part it will play in the future of our country." Mrs. Scott spoke on the "Window of the Grange," the National Grange lecturer's theme for 1976-77 grange year. David Scott, master of Valley Grange, gave a few remarks.

Next meeting will be the "Easter" program on April 2.

Labor slammed

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- The unexpected House rejection of H.R. 4250, Common Situs Picketing, last week dealt the labor bosses their biggest setback in Congress for nearly a decade, according to Congressman Bob Walker who says: "I was particularly pleased with the vote as passage would have meant an infringement on an individuals basic freedom of choice in the building and construction trades."

The bill's primary sponsor, Congressman Frank Thompson of New Jersey, said afterwards that the vote puts Common Situs to rest for a long, long time.

F & H scholarship

Each scholarship award will be in the amount of $500.00 and may be used to help defray tuition, fees, or room and board expenses at and accredited educational institution, which offers a course of study in agriculture, home economics, or nursing.

These Farm and Home Foundation scholarships are earnings from an Irrevocable Trust Fund set up by the late Elmer L. Esbenshade, one of the founders of the Lancaster County Farm and Home Foundation. The income from this trust fund will be offered annually in the form of educational scholarships through the Farm and Home Foundation. In addition, funds from the Foundation treasury are being used to help finance the scholarship program.

All senior guidance counselors throughout the Lancaster County school districts are being informed of these scholarships in order to get prospective boys and girls informed.

Interested youth are urged to contact their guidance counselor for details and an application blank. Additional information is also available from M. M. Smith, chairman of the Scholarship Committee, 1383 Arcadia Road, Lancaster, Pa. 17601 (Phone 394-6851). Application forms must be forwarded by April 25, 1977.

poultry business. Special guests included Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture, Kent Shelhamer and Pennsylvania Poultry Princess, Elizabeth Sperry. Several members of the Pennsylvania legislature were also on hand. Entertainment was provided by a dinner orchestra, singer-humorist Jud Strunk and a young musical group called "Life."

Speeches were kept to an absolute minimum, as the emphasis was placed on good eating, entertainment and fellowship. The main course for the dinner was "Sunshine Chicken," which was judged as best during the 1976 National Chicken Cooking Contest. Recipes for the dish are available from the Federation.

"The entire evening has been planned especially for you in grateful acknowledgement of your concern for our industry," a printed welcoming announcement stated inside the cover of the program. Banquet co-chairmen this year were Bill Carlin, Ken Longacre and Dale M. Weaver.

The Pennsylvania Poultry Federation serves its industry through promotion, legislation and government relations, youth programs, public relations, scholarships, publications, educational seminars, disease control, and research. Known as "The united voice of the poultry industry," the Federation is headquartered at 500 North Progress Avenue, Harrisburg, Pa. 17109.

BANVEL DISTRIBUTOR
Pre-emergence tank-mix controls grassy and broadleaf weeds without carryover
Banvel®+Lasso®*

a giant first step toward total weed control in field corn

Successful on millions of acres where corn is the major crop, the Banvel + Lasso herbicide combination can give you "near perfect" control of a wide spectrum of grassy and broadleaf weeds, when used according to label directions.

Banvel + Lasso herbicide is compatible with most fluid fertilizers. It needs no incorporation. There is no carryover.

Take a giant step toward total weed control. Call about the Banvel + Lasso combination. Remember, the "near perfect" herbicide is the one you build...starting with Banvel herbicide...from Velsicol.

*The combination is effective on all major soil types, except light sandy soils. Lasso is a registered trademark of Monsanto Company.

To achieve best results, be sure to read, understand and follow the label.

pre-emergence herbicide

A giant step toward total weed control in corn.

EFFECTIVE CONTROL OF BROADLEAF AND GRASSY WEEDS WITHOUT CARRYOVER PROBLEMS

What degree of weed control will you settle for in your corn? Most of the thousands of growers we've talked with on the Banvel® "Hot Line" seem to expect at least 90 percent control. And, most of them have been getting it with the pre-emergence, post-plant application of Banvel® + Lasso® tank-mix.

An important advantage of this combination which growers appreciate is freedom from worry about carry-over, particularly following a year of droughty conditions.

HOW TO ACHIEVE 90% OR BETTER CONTROL ON LABELED WEEDS

Here are the most important steps to successful results with Banvel® + Lasso® tank-mix:

- Apply Banvel® + Lasso® strictly according to soil type and percent of organic matter. The Banvel® + Lasso® label spells it out for you.
- Incorporation is not only unnecessary, it is undesirable other than under extreme drought conditions; even then, incorporation should be no more than ½-inch.
- If you apply Banvel® + Lasso® with liquid fertilizer, check compatibility of the liquids first by mixing proper proportions in a small container
- Use the right kind of nozzles and screens. The label is specific on this point.
- This combination should not be used on any sandy textured soils.

*LASSO® is a registered trademark of Monsanto Company The Banvel® + Lasso® tank-mix is cleared for use in Colorado, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Dakota and Wisconsin.

York satisfied

suggested to the New York order, which covers most of Eastern's members. One proposal is to increase the allowable hauling deduction from $.10 to $.25. York said the proposed changes could influence the price to dairymen from $.15 to $.30 depending upon how the changes are ultimately implemented. Hearings on the proposals were held last year, but a decison is not yet out. York said, "We don't know the full impact."

York told about his role in working with Congress and other legislative bodies, representing members in vital areas. He said he testified before the Senate Agricultural Committe in March in support of a new Agricultural Act to replace the 1973 Act which expires this year. He said that if a program is not enacted this year, the whole federal order program could be in trouble.

He noted that the agriculture budget has decreased to $2.5 billion from $5.2 billion in 1970, and suggested that certain unrelated expenditures be such as day care and food stamps be removed from that budget. He called upon the public to be aware of the decreasing budget, in comparison with other areas, and said that the department must remain sound for a sound American agriculture.

At the hearings, York asked for a continuation of P.L. 480 which allows commodities to be sold and used in foreign aid. He also asked that an economic formula be used in pricing milk, including a clear definition of the pricing. He called for continuation of the indemnity program and asked that imported agricultural products be inspected at the source of production.

York said he also asked that a method be made available to set aside a portion of money from the marketing of milk for a retirement plan for dairymen so there will be money available when a farmer plans to retire.

York said he is proud of the years he has spent trying to build a strong organization for dairy farmers in the Northeast.

Franklin Wagner, Hummelstown R2, a Dauphin county dairymen who is a candidate for director to replace Wanner, said he would like to help work for a "fair payment for a quality product." He told dairymen they should all work to make it easy for the cooperative to market the milk advantageously by producing the best quality possible.

The following officers were elected: Robert E. Martin, New Holland R3, president; Ray W. Beyer, Lititz RD, vice-president; Daniel H. Martin, Quarryville, secretary; and LeRoy S. Smucker, Leola R1, treasurer; Delegate will be Paul H. Bruckhart, Manheim R5, and alternate delegate is Mervin Weaver, Jr., Lititz R2.

Farmers

TAMS engineering firm, TAMS is looking into the feasibility of constructing a dam in the area.

What has the citizens burned is that while $728,000 are being spent by eight utility companies to study potential reservoir sites, no one has ever asked the land owners how they feel. Studies are being made on water quality, effect on game, etc., but until Monday night, the land owners' feelings allegedly were never taken into consideration.

The farmers and others demanded a change. Those doing the studies were invited to go around the area to interview residents. One outspoken man asserted that none of those in the valley would sell and was met with considerable applause for the remarks.

"We live here, we know this land. Don't you think it would be nice if you come here and ask us how we feel?" asked Terry McGlone, who heads the Citizens Opposing Red Creek Dam.

The Red Creek Dam site is one of four being considered by eight Pennsylvania electric companies to provide cooling water for atomic power plants along the Delaware River. The Delaware River Basin Commission is directing the utilities to come up with a water reservoir for that purpose, after having ordered them out of a site which the utilities had in mind before.

Monday's meeting, although occasionally a bit heated, was orderly for the most part. Citizens were given the opportunity to ask questions and state their feelings, while representatives from the engineering firm and a power company fielded questions.

Disappointment was expressed during the meeting that the representatives were often unqualified to answer questions because the issues were not within their expertise.

According to State Representative Bill Hutchinson, 125th District, the issue involved is not just land-use, but what he termed "facelessness of government." He asserted that "these people rely on you to take the questions back....these people would like to face the decision makers." Visibly irritated that the representatives could not answer many questions, he urged that the situation be remedied by responsible officials coming forward and honest studies being conducted. He alleged that studies such as those being done regarding the reservoir and dam are "often pulled off a book shelf."

Manure disposal could get tough

by DIETER KRIEG

LANCASTER -- Penn State's agricultural engineer Gerald Bodman says that those farmers who are presently doing a good job with manure and soil management will have "less to worry about in the future regarding the environment. But the other one per cent had better look out."

He also told a group of dairymen meeting here at the Farm and Home Center on March 1 that daily hauling of manure and earthen bank storages have not been outlawed. Some farmers may have had that impression.

Bodman told the dairymen in attendance that some of the most comprehensive environmental laws anywhere are now on the books, and once they're implemented, some farmers may have a tough time.

According to Bodman, who specializes in designs and operations of manure management systems, "some progress towards protecting the environment will become evident when people begin to show concern for their neighbors, rather than just themselves."

"So far not a farm in Pennsylvania has been forced to bring about changes in his manure management system, Bodman said, adding "I hope it continues that way; I hope we can always stay ahead of the regulations game."

Bodman also believes that farmers themselves have a "a real responsibility to have their non-farm neighbors know what agriculture is all about. "It's high time to talk about manure utilization," the ag engineer emphasized. "Blow your own horn a little bit and help non-farm people understand what it's all about.

In presenting his talk and an accompanying slide show, Bodman pointed out that there isn't any one system which works 100 per cent all the time. "Eventually they all need maintenance and there are breakdowns," he warned. Noting that most of the manure handling systems on the market today are relatively new, he cautioned farmers about going out and spending thousands of dollars on equipment which was never really proven, over a period of time. His advice is to keep things low-cost and simple. All that matters is that the system comply with environmental regulations and that it gets the job done.

Just as no single system works 100 percent all the time, no system preserves 100 percent of the manure values, Bodman lectured. During spray application of liquid manure, for example, 10 to 15 percent of the Nitrogen can be lost.

The deadline for "pollution permits" passed on March 10. That affected only the largest farms (750 cows or more; 2500 or more hogs; 1000 or more heifers or steers). But that does not necessarily mean all others are exempt. A permit may still be required if a complaint is registered against a farm and an on-site inspection determines that pollution is in excess of standards.

Peach Council president outlines challenges

MARTINSBURG, W.Va.—Paul McPherson of New Park, Pa. outgoing president of the National Peach Council, and NPC staff members Robert and Betty Phillips all talked about what the National Peach Council had done during the last year and has planned for this year, in making reports to the Council's recent annual convention in Kalamazoo, Mich.

McPherson, who keynoted the convention sessions with a talk entitled "Some Challenges for National Peach Council," touched on a number of the challenges facing the organization.

Among the challenges he mentioned were an emotional dispute concerning the use of certain national convention funds; improvements in the Council's food editor releases by the addition of color photos; and the need for changes in the industry's public relations and educational programs, better communications within the industry, and greatly expanded research programs concerning the production and handling of peaches.

McPherson pointed out that a large segment of today's population knows little or nothing about where fruit is produced or "how some government actions and capricious Mother Nature - and I put them in that order on purpose - can affect the quality and quantity of the fruit that is available."

Changes in the eating habits of Americans will also have a terrific impact on the fresh fruit business and fresh consumption, McPherson said. Fast food chains, industrial and government cafeterias, nursing homes, hospitals, schools, and military installations, are just a few of the places which are feeding increasing numbers of people.

To change some of the problems, the Pennsylvania fruit grower said, there is need for additional information going to schools, and a much greater effort is needed to get peach people and-or peaches on television shows, station breaks or any other place where they will be seen.

On the communications front he reported there is a great need to expand the council's monthly publication to include more information about new government regulations, more about industry and research developments, new products, producers profiles, and consumer feedback.

And for research money, he told the peach growers that they must learn to influence the actions of government to get the funds which are needed for long-term research projects which cannot be funded by individual producers or even by the states.

Robert Phillips, executive secretary for NPC, later told how the Council has made many new contacts in Washington, D.C. during the last few years, largely among people who were not previously aware that peach producers had a national organization.

At the same time, Phillips explained, the Council has been working with other groups which have similar problems with the Environmental Protection Agency, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration and other government agencies to try to get regulations modified or, when possible, get changes made before the proposals moved too far along in the policy-making sections of the agencies.

He also pointed out that the Environmental Protection Agency is operationg under several different laws, rather than just one law, which makes it more difficult to come to grips with the various problems.

OSHA, on the other hand, was given broad powers under one law, and the power was put into an agency under the Department of Labor, which has long been oriented toward worrying more about special protection for individuals than the effects which such protection might have on overall economic or social problems.

Educational activities of the National Peach Council were discussed by Betty Phillips, who is the Council's home economist.

Included in the current programs are four special annual releases to more than 200 daily newspapers across the nation; helping sponsor a booth at the annual American Home Economics Association convention; distributing materials about peaches through cooperation in Good Housekeeping workshops for home economists; and circulation of a slide series, "The Peach Story," to various schools.

Included in the cookbooks are all the tested recipes which were in the files of National Peach Council, plus many other recipes and other material which Mrs. McPherson gathered from other sources in Pennsylvania and some other states.

The cookbooks are available from either National Peach Council, P O Box 1085, Martinsburg, W.Va. 25401, or from Passion for Peaches Publisher, Route 1, Box 66, New Park, Pa., 17352. The cost for individual copies is $3.95 plus 50 cents for postage and packaging.

New tobacco type found

LANDISVILLE, Pa. - Pennlan is a new cigar filler variety developed by the joint efforts of tobacco personel from the Pennsylvania Agricultural Experiment Station and the Agricultural Research Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture. This new variety is resistant to tobacco mosaic and wildfire diseases, and has moderate resistance to black root rot. Although Pennlan is not resistant to etch virus, the yield of Pennlan is reduced less than the yield of Pennbel 69 when infected with etch virus. Pennlan is not resistant to black shank disease.

General plant appearance resembles the compact type growth exhibited by the variety Pennbel 69, but the leaves of Pennlan are shorter and more oval shaped than Pennbel 69 leaves. Pennlan generally matures one or two days earlier then Pennbel 69, and the cured leaf is generally a lighter color than Pennbel 69 cured leaf.

Over a six year period at the Southeastern Field Research Laboratory, Landisville, the average yield of Pennlan was significantly greater than the yield of Greider, but Pennlan yield was generally slightly lower then the yield of Pennbel 69 tobacco. Based on U.S.D.A. standard grades for Pennsylvania cigar filler tobacco, Pennlan cured leaf quality equalled or exceeded the quality of Greider leaf in five of the six years, and that of Pennbel 69 in four of the six years. Tobacco company leaf buyers preferred Pennlan cured leaf over that of Greider or Pennbel 69 leaf each of the two years they rated the tobacco.

The release of Pennlan gives the Pennsylvania tobacco grower and additional variety choice that has disease resistance similar to Pennbel 69 but has leaf characteristics different from Pennbel 69. Until each grower determines the value of this new variety on his farm, growers are urged to plant only part of their acreage ot Pennlan. Seed is available from Ben F. Beiler, Paradise; Dan S. Esh, Gordonville; S.N. Myer, Elizabethtown, or at the various farm supply outlets where these seed producers normally place their seed for sale.

Apples down

HARRISBURG, Pa. Pennsylvania apples in cold storage on February 28 totaled 48,350,000 pounds, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service. The apple holding is down 29,556,000 pounds, or 38 per cent from the same period a year ago.

Indicated disappearance during February amounted to 22,046,000 pounds. The 48,350,000 pounds of apples in storage converts to 1,151,190 boxes of 42 pounds each. Of this quantity, approximately 66 per cent is indicated for processing at this time.

Unhandiman's answer to the antique blues

By SUSAN KAUFFMAN
Feature Writer

Do you love antique furniture but hate the cost of restoring it? Would you like to have the skill to do some of the restoring yourself, but are weary of the often prohibitive cost of materials and tools for many popular crafts and hobbies? Have you once again threatened to throw out that old rocker or dining room chair you found during Spring housecleaning which has the caning missing or damaged?

Then, learning to cane chair seats may be the answer for you.

Weaving a chair seat with cane takes time and patience, but the work is not hard. The cost is very low when you do it yourself. At a recently conducted series of three, two hour sessions instructed by Linda Franz of the Lancaster County Extension Service, 14 individuals learned the basic steps to chair caning.

Mrs. Franz, who usually works with youth in the 4-H program at the extension office, shared her skill in caning with these adults who soon realized that patience rather than the cost or technical skill was most important for developing this art.

The cane is sold by the bundle or hank with about 1,000 feet to a hank. This amount will be suffient to cane four seats at a cost of less than two dollars a chair. Having a chair caned by another craftsperson can cost anywhere from $35 to $50 and more depending on the size of the chair and the cost per hole that the weaver charges.

Obviously, since the material is inexpensive, the hours spent in fashioning the finished product make caning valuable.

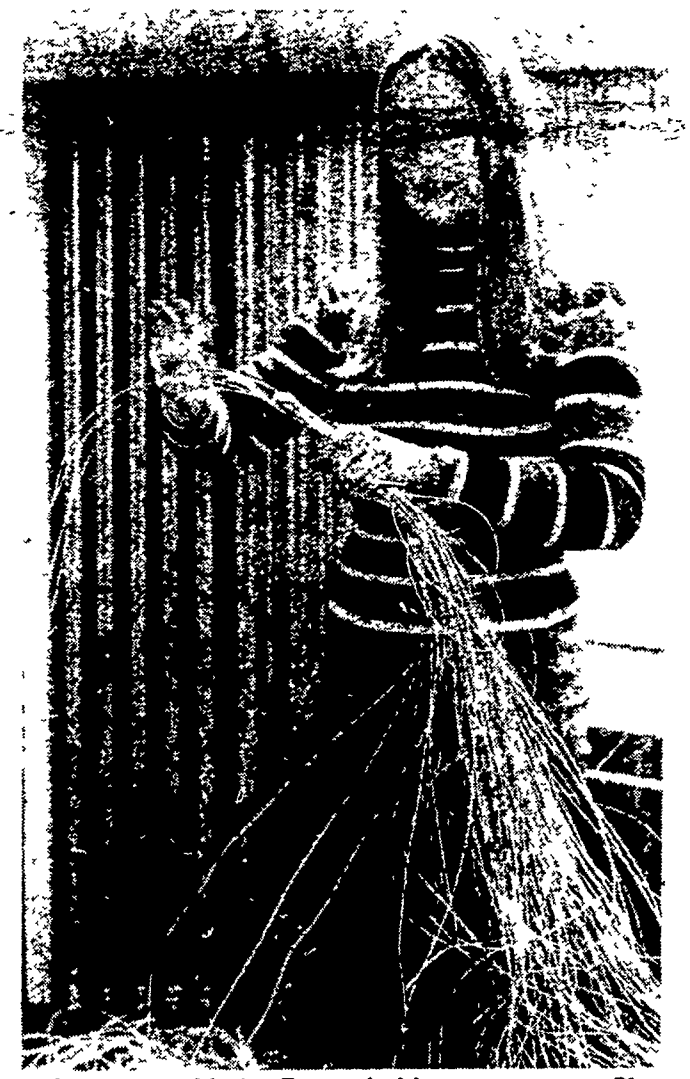
According to Mrs. Franz the steps in caning are very simple in technique. It takes some practice or good guidance to create a well finished seat but the basics are fairly easy to master.

The list of equipment needed to cane is short. A chair with holes in the frame of the seat, the weaving cane and binder, an ice pick or screw driver, shears or a sharp knife, a cloth or sponge, caning pegs or old golf tees or pencil stubs, and a pan of water for soaking the cane, complete the list.

Natural cane is the bark of rattan cut into strips. The smooth side has eyes or bumps where leaf stems grew. It is necessary to run the cane between the thumb and index finger to determine which direction to pull the strip so that the eyes will slip through rather than catch and fray the cane.

Selection of the different widths of cane depends on the size of the holes in the chair frame and the distance between the holes. A medium width will be used for one-quarter inch holes, three-quarters of an inch apart. These are the most common size holes. Fine cane is used for three-sixteenths inch holes. five-eighths of an inch apart. Binding cane is heavier and wider than weaving cane and is used to cover the holes around the outside of the finished seat.

Before starting to cane, the chair should be refinished, if needed. Soak the cane in warm water about five minutes before using and keep adding pieces of cane to the water as you weave.



Instructor Linda Franz holds some cane. She learned the technique of caning chairs about five years ago.

Step 4

Work with the smooth side of the cane on top and be sure to start each strand so that the eyes slide through rather than snag. Do not allow the strands to twist and keep the lines created straight and parallel. Don't draw the cane too tight at first since the cane will tighten as it dries and the weaving progresses.

To start caning a square or rectangular seat, put the end of the cane down through the center hole in the back of the seat allowing the end to extend three or four inches below the frame. Place a peg in the hole to hold the cane firmly. Thread the other end of the cane through the center front hole. Pull the cane snug but not too tight and peg this hole to hold cane. Bring the cane up through the hole on either side of the front center hole and across to the back, down through the corresponding hole in the back of the seat. Continue working this half until all holes front and back, except corners, are used. Start cane in the hole on the other side of the center back hole and complete other half of seat in the same way. In an irregular shaped seat and a round seat some of the side holes will not be used. Judgement is needed to keep the strands parallel and the same distance apart.

Step 5

The second step in caning begins at a corner. Put the cane through the hole and allow the end to extend down three or four inches and peg in place. Carry the cane over the weaving already done and insert in the opposite corner. A grid effect will result with the second strands always on top of and at right angles to the first layer.

The third step is exactly the same as the first step. Cane extends across the frame in the same direction and in the same holes as the first strands with the strands of step two lying between. Fasten cane ends securely under the seat frame after completing this third step by dampening the loose ends until pliable and using a halfhitch on the underside of the frame. The weaving really begins with the fourth step. The strands in the fourth step run parallel to those in step two and in the same holes, but rather than lying on top of the other strands, these strands in the fourth step go over and under various strands to form the weave. Weave the cane over the strands of step three and under the strands of step one.

In step five the first diagonally woven strands are placed Start at the right'hand corner of the back, as you face the chair, and weave diagonally across to the left front of the chair. Weave under the pair of strands that run from side to side and over the pair of strands that run from front to back. Continue to weave until the left triangle of the seat is finished. Finish the other triangle in step five you may need to use the same hole twice or skip a hole to keep the diagonal lines straight. What you do will depend upon the shape of the seat and the spacing of the holes. Judgment and practice will make these decisions easier.

After weaving a short distance, stop and check for mistakes to avoid real problems in later steps. In a square seat, two diagonal strands will run into each corner. This is known as the fishhead. When the seat is round, start in a hole between back and side center holes and weave, keeping strands straight and diagonal.

Step six is the reverse of step five. Begin at the left back corner hole and weave under the strands that run from back to front (steps one and three) and over the strands that run from side to side (steps two and four). Make sure you have two diagonal strands running into the corner hole on a square seat. Check your work after working a short distance. This step completes the hexagonal shape of the hole created by the weaving. Dampen the cane and line up strands with a hexagonal pencil or peg. Dampen ends and tie securely.

The final step in caning is to finish the seat by covering the holes with a strip of binding cane. This is done by taking a piece of the larger binding cane and strand of the cane used in weaving. Insert the end of the binder cane into a corner hole and peg temporarily. Lay the binder along the frame over the holes. Fasten the end of the weaving cane securely under the rail or frame. Pull the other end of the weaving cane up through the first hole from the corner where the binder cane was inserted, over the binder and down through the same hole. The loop formed over the binder holds the binder to the frame securely in place. Continue over the binder in the same manner keeping the binder flat and pulling the weaving cane tight. Finish corners by carrying the ends of the binder down through the hole and driving a soft wood peg into the hole. Cut the peg off even with the chair frame. The cane should be wet and pliable enough to turn corners and loop over the binder easily.

Homestead Notes

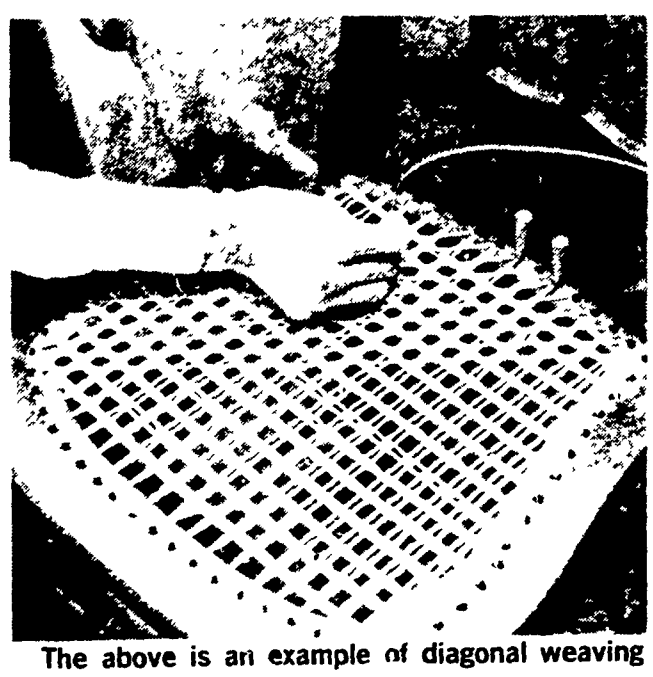
The chair caning process looks like this prior to diagonal weaving.



The above is an example of diagonal weaving using authentic cane pegs.

When finishing a round chair seat use one continuous piece of binder which starts and ends at the same hole. Use a peg to secure this binder when the looping is completed. Cut the peg even with the chair frame.

Several diligent weavers at the workshop led by Mrs. Franz said the first three steps were somewhat tedious but when they started the diagonal weaving, the resulting pattern was so bewitching that they just had to keep going. Creating the six-sided holes was rewarding enough to keep them at their tasks even though they would from time to tome make a mistake or the cane would split or their back or knees would tire from remaining in the same position for an unusually long time. Some innovative weavers decided to put their projects on a table and work standing rather than stooped.

Whatever your reasons are for starting to cane or whatever you devise to use to hold the cane in place or how you stand or stoop to cane, you can try something new that may bring you hours of rewarding enterprise at a very low cost.

On being a farm wife - and other hazards

By Joyce Bupp

"What are you doing here, anyway?" asked a little voice inside my head. Well, I wasn't exactly sure, to be truthful. It was dark, cold, and windy outside and we stood shivering in our three layers of clothing.

"Let's go take the beginners' tennis lessons at the adult education high school evening classes," a friend has suggested a few weeks before. The challenge and potential healthy exercise sounded like fun-so here we were.

The sixteen women looked self consciously at one another, while our tennis instructor explained the fundamentals of the game. Many of us had never even held a tennis racquet in our hands before.

After the third week, we actually began to be able to keep score, serve a ball into the proper court and return a volley before it hit us square in the nose. You learn to ignore your awkwardness and inexperience when you're in the same handicapped company. This was getting to be almost fun, and the two hours of the weekly class passed rapidly.

"Try to practice at least once a week," our instructor told us. Ha! Easier said than done when you have a husband, two kids and a household to look after, bookkeeping and office chores, calves to feed, and several meetings each week to attend. I looked around for a substitute practice area - and there staring me in the face was the side of the wagon shed, neatly blacktopped all around.

So, hitting the tennis ball against the side of the shed has now become a family affair. It's amazingly relaxing, when supper is simmering in the oven, and most of the housework is caught up, to spend half an hour chasing that little fuzzy ball around our rarely used road. The kids borrow the badminton racquets to practice and occasionally the big farmer tries out the sport for a minute or two while I put supper on the table. Of course, the game is interrupted if a car happens to pass on the road--but farmers are accustomed to inconveniences.

And, I have the distinction of being the only member of my class whose tennis ball has met its ultimate end in the manure pit.

Plant lovers' corner

Sterilize plant soil in oven

STERILIZE PLANT SOIL IN OVEN

You can be assured of satisfactory results when you grow plants from seed if you first sterilize the soil in which you will grow them. Commercial florists and nurserymen use live steam to get rid of the causes of damping-off disease and other harmful organisms.

However, home gardeners can get the same results more conveniently by sterilizing the soil in ovens of their kitchen stoves. Place soil about three-quarters of an inch thick in an old piepan or baking dish. Set the temperature in the oven to about 300 degrees F. and keep it there for half an hour. Place the soil in clean pots or flats, and the seeds you plant will have a better chance of developing into healthy plants.

Home gardeners find it both exciting and useful to be able to control plant growth. This can be done in many ways--in everything from cold frames to greenhouses. The choice of structure and equipment is so broad that it can be confusing.

Before you decide what type of structure to build, take a look at the kind of gardening you want to do, advises University of Delaware extension agricultural engineer Ernest W. Walpole.

If you're a plant lover with very little time for gardening, the best choice may be an area or room in your home that you turn into an attractive, low cost indoor growing place. Many gardeners find that fluorescent light fixtures are an inexpensive installation that can provide good light for houseplants or seedlings.

A cold frame is another option, if you just want to start a few seedlings in the spring. You can even build a heating cable into it for better environmental control for the plants you start there. And then there's the glass greenhouse, which can become an attractive, permanent, addition to your home landscape. One drawback to this type of structure is that it and its associated equipment costs several thousand dollars to install. This makes it too expensive for many people.

A less expensive option is to construct a plastic covered greenhouse. This type of structure is somewhat less attractive and less durable than a glass house, but it will provide a pleasant, protected working area during the blustery, wet days of spring. Add a heater and a ventilation fan and you can use the structure for a longer season and greater variety of plants.

Whichever of the above growing systems appeals to you, there's lots of good information available on installing and operating it in a new, soft-cover book which has just been published by the Northeast Regional Agricultural Engineering Service, of which the University of Delaware is a member. The book is called "Hobby Greenhouses And Other Gardening Structures". It contains both information and plans for a variety of hotbeds and cold frames, growth chambers, and greenhouses. Copies of this publication cost $2 each and are available by writing the Department of Agricultural Engineering, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, Del. 19711. Make checks payable to the University of Delaware.

Dairy princess sought

By LAUREL SCHAEFFER
Berks County Reporter

READING, PA.– Plans are underway for this years Dairy Princess Pageant. Organizers from Berks and surrounding counties met at the Sherator-Berkshire Hotel March 21 to be briefed on procedures and to discuss possible problems they may face.

The women were first shown a film on the United Dairy Industry Association (UDIA) which explained what the association's purposes are and how it is organized. The film previewed the new advertising promotions soon to be publicized and the exsisting promotions now being used.

Robert Morris from DHIA explained KMMC (Keystone Milk Marketing Council) to the women. It is a newly formed organization being just a year old. The Council's purpose is to "Increase the utilization of milk produced in Pennsylvania through carefully planned and coordinated promotional activities." KMMC is also actively involved in the Dairy Princess Pageant and is trying to include more counties in the program and to increase their promotional activities.

The Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Pageant training seminar to be held at York College, York, during July 18-20 was also discussed. To be eligible for the state contest, county princesses are required to attend the seminar, which is intended to educate and train the girls for dairy publicity and promotional activities.

Different way to get eligible girls involved in the the county contests were also discussed.

ABOUT STYLES AND CUTS OF HAM

It is time to be thinking about what you plan to serve for Easter dinner. If ham is your choice, knowing what the different terms applied to styles and cuts of ham mean will help you make better buys for the needs of your family.

Following are some of the more common terms applied to ham styles and cuts.

Whole hams with shank removed and fat and skin closely trimmed are referred to as whole hams. They contain the bone.

Boneless hams can be bought as a roll or canned. Boneless cooked roll has no waste. Canned ham has no bone and little fat and cooking loss, but each can will contain a cup or more of gelatin and juices.

Semi-boneless hams have part of the bones and excess fat covering removed. From each end of these hams, bones are removed to the joint. Many of these hams show a yield equal to the average boneless ham.

Half hams should provide the same number servings as whole hams because no center cuts are to be removed if hams are sold as "halves." Because of consumer preference, the "butt half" usually costs more per pound than the "shank half."

Center slices are taken from the center of the ham after the ends are removed.

Ham portions - shank and butt - are not halves of hams, but the ends left after the ends are removed.

Smoked shoulder butts and picnics are similar to ham, though less tender. Picnics are made from pork shoulders, while hams come from the hindquarters. Picnics, like hams, can be bought in cured or fully cooked stages of preparation. Picnics have a higher proportion of bone and fat than hams, so have fewer servings to the pound.

BUYING ITALIAN SAUSAGE MADE EASIER

Italian sausage now has gained official recognition. According to a United States Department of Agriculture survey conducted three years ago, people had very definite ideas on what was an Italian sausage. The result is a new standard of composition for this sausage.

Officially, it's described as an uncured, unsmoked sausage in a casing or in a link, in bulk or patty form, containing at least 85 per cent pork or a combination of pork and fat. The fat limit is 35 per cent. The sausage will also contain salt, pepper and either fennel or anise spices, or a combination of the two.

In addition, the sausage may contain optional ingredients appropriate for this product, such as spices, including paprika and flavoring, red or green peppers, garlic, sugar and onions. The product may also include beef or veal with appropriate labeling, such as "Italian suasage with beef."

The labels will no longer need to use the terms Italian-type or Italian-style sausage since the name Italian sausage appears in general use in the United States by those who produce and eat it.

The new standard allows for optional seasonings and spices to allow for different formulations. There are also provisions for the formulation of Italian sausage made only of beef or veal, with appropriate labeling, to provide for persons who for religious or dietary reasons can't eat pork.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

With the spring rains, the Conestoga overflows its banks and covers our meadow quite often. We always see limbs, jugs, and miscellaneous articles floating downstream when this happens.

The white ducks and geese enjoy the rapid current, and swim at an angle to get ashore. It is more difficult to catch a glimpse of the wild ducks and sometimes geese that stop by for a few days. A few wild ducks stay with us all summer and I can watch them fly overhead as I work in the garden. Often they will quack and draw attention to their presence.

Our geese are laying medium and large-sized eggs just now but something is eating some of them—probably it is a raccoon.

xxx

Sometimes I feel that I am as important as a chauffeur as I am as a housewife and mother. There is constantly someone wanting to go somewhere. I hear, "Get this, get that," or "Go here, go there." We live too far from other families to form car pools for school and church activities.

Most of the driving is in the evening for bell choir, chorus, flute lessons, dances and parties. But don't overlook those dentist appointments, visits to the optician, and of course, garages too, Just now our church is producing a musical, "Lightshine" and there have been hours of practice for weeks now. Usually, I read or write letters while I wait. Sometimes I can use the time to get groceries.

I'm not really complaining as it does give me an opportunity to get out of the house and I really can't imagine being dependent on someone else for transportation.

Junior Cooking Edition

The first recipe in this week's line-up could be considered an April Fools joke by the sound of the name. But, the contributor was sincere when she sent it in, and says it is a type of pudding, and that it doesn't taste like mud. Try it, and see if she's telling the truth.

Hope you pulled some good tricks yesterday, but didn't get fooled yourself.

MISSISSIPPI MUD

1-½ cups brown sugar
2-½ cups milk
½ cup water
1 tablespoon vanilla
3 egg yolks
4 tablespoons flour
12 graham crackers
1 tablespoon butter (heaping)

Melt butter and brown. Add sugar and water and boil until thick. Set aside. Mix egg yolks, flour, and milk together. Add to prepared syrup and boil until thick. Add vanilla and put into dish. Roll graham crackers and spread on top. Spread with beaten egg whites and a few graham cracker crumbs. Brown slightly.

SUGAR DROP COOKIES

4 cups granulated sugar
2 cups brown sugar
3 eggs
1 cup shortening
1 tablespoon nutmeg
1 tablespoon vanilla
1 cup cream
2 cups buttermilk
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
10 cups flour

Combine above ingredients. Bake in 400 degrees F. oven. Roll in powdered sugar while warm.

PEANUT BRITTLE

2 cups sugar
1 cup white syrup
½ cup water
3 cups raw peanuts
1 teaspoon butter, melted
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine sugar, syrup and water. Cook to soft ball state (236 degrees). Add peanuts and melted butter and continue cooking until syrup is a golden brown (290 degrees). Stir during last few minutes of cooking. Remove from heat and add soda and vanilla. Stir until mixture thickens. Pour into buttered tins and break into pieces when cold. If roasted peanuts are used, add to syrup before removing from heat.

Recipe Swap

This week "Recipe Swap" is featuring the Lebanon bologna recipe that was requested on February 19. And, if anyone knows a recipe for a coconut custard pie that makes its own crust, send in into us with your name, address, and phone number.

Have a good week.

LEGANON BOLOGNA

100 lbs. beef, well trimmed from tallow and cut in small pieces
6 lbs. sugar
3 lbs. salt
4 oz. black pepper
1-½ oz. salt petre
1 gallon light molasses

Mix salt and salt petre together. Put layers of cut meat in wooden tub or large crock. Sprinkle salt mixture on layers of meat and repeat until all is used up. Top layer of meat should be well covered with salt mixture. Let set in cold place for three to four weeks. Then, grind very fine. Add sugar, pepper, and light molasses. Then stuff bags and have smoked in smoke house or use liquid smoke, which is called patent smoke. If liquid smoke is used, hang bolognas on attic for two or three weeks to dry before eating. If desired, you can use some pork instead of all beef.

Virginville Grange

VIRGINVILLE, Pa. - At the March meeting of the Virginville Grange the charter was draped for Irene Krick, and the winners of the cupcakes were announced with the following results: juniors - Paul Balthaser, Keith Treichler, David Williams, Eva Treichler, Thelma Snyder, and Mabel Gift. Heritage Trail Home Tour to visit

A touch of Williamsburg can be found in Lancaster Co.

By JOANNE SPAHR

Editor's note: For the third year, the Lancaster County Farmers' Association (associated with the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association) Women's Committee will sponsor their Heritage Trail Home Tour on April 20. Guests will tour five homes in the Manheim area which contain a legacy of Americana, farming history, and beauty. The following article deals with one of the homes to be visited. The other four homes will be featured in the upcoming weeks prior to Ladies Day Out.

EAST PETERSBURG, Pa. – At right angles to and hugging the porch of the oversized but gracious red brick farm house stands the diminutive colonial dwelling. It's as though a tornado stole the little green building right out of Williamsburg, Va., and planted it near the protective porch wings of the maternal farm house in Lancaster County for security. And, liking its surroundings, the house stayed and flourished where it landed.

The actual history, of course, is not nearly as romantic as this fictionalized version, but it may be equally as interesting.

The colonial house in question belongs to Mr. and Mrs. Earl Landis, Manheim R7, dairy farmers, who recently restored it to its original state.

Built in the late 1700's, the home constructed for the purpose of housing retiring farm couples when "the younger generation" took over the family business. The last person to live in the home was Maria (pronounced Mar - eye' - a) Bassler. She and her husband Jacob farmed the land until he died, and their son, Young Jacob, took over the business. When this happened, Maria retired to the "old house" as it was always called, and lived there until she passed away in 1878.

From that time on, the house was not lived in by humans except for a short span in the 1900's when the big brick house was being remodeled.

However, just because humans did not live in it does not mean that it was totally uninhabited for all those years. On the contrary, as the century of its dormancy slowly ticked away, many a brood of peeps and rabbits were reared in what is now the upstairs bedrooms.

And, during the T.B. testing period in 1938 to 1940, the dairy cows were tied in it when the testing was taking place on the farm.

Also, through the years it has served as a playhouse, wood shop, storage room, and garage for the different owners using it.

Then, in 1975 Mr. and Mrs. Earl Landis bought the farm from his father and some changes began to take place.

"When we were sandblasting our home (the adjacent red brick structure, the sandblaster said that he would like to do the outside of the little house sometime, "Mrs. Landis explains. Then, with a modest grin and a chuckle she adds, "At first I thought it was a joke, then Earl and I started thinking seriously about it, and we decided to do it."

Before the sandblaster ever came to do the outside of the stone dwelling, the Landis's had committed themselves in their minds to redo the entire building inside and out, a process that

When handled and stored properly, alfalfa is the most complete livestock ration you can grow. When alfalfa is baled, leaves shatter. Protein is lost. Nutrients disappear

With the Sealstor System you harvest alfalfa as medium-moisture haylage. There's less field loss, less storage loss, less labor, fewer weather worries. You can often windrow, chop and Sealstor haylage within 24 hours

Sealstored haylage is protected in a glass-steel, oxygen limiting structure. Nutrients are preserved. You get a mildly fermented, sweet-smelling, palatable ration. You get more tonnage, TDN and protein. You eliminate baling. You push a button to feed. Figure it out. To Sealstor alfalfa haylage, is to save time, labor and feed value.

An open letter to the farmers of 1976 Federally declared disaster areas:

Massey-Ferguson Inc.
1901 Bell Avenue, Des Moines Iowa 50315

Dear Friend:

If you've had to delay your plans to buy needed new equipment because of less than acceptable farm income caused by weather or other adverse conditions...Massey-Ferguson may be able to help you.

We've authorized Massey-Ferguson farm machinery dealers to provide special financing to help farmers in Federally declared disaster areas buy the machinery they need, when their major source of income has been impaired by the disaster.

This unusual MF Machinery-Purchase program also has a provision allowing you to defer payments if your major source of income should fail again, and your locale is declared a disaster area in 1977.

Why are we doing this? Frankly, when your business suffers, we all suffer. It's that simple.

So if your plans and your future have been greatly altered by circumstances beyond your control, we're ready and willing to help as always. Get all the details now about this special program for farmers of 1976 Federally declared disaster areas. See your Massey-Ferguson dealer. He wants to help you, and so do we.

Sincerely yours, took from April to October of last year.

"Fortunately for us, the house had never been remodeled because it had not been used for so long," notes Mrs. Landis, "So all the original Williamsburg colors were still in tact." Also, the walls were still plastered and whitewashed, just as they were when the house was constructed. Another guide the Landis's had to follow were some old drafts which showed the color of the buildings. So, with all this help, they were able to return the home to much of its original state.

They did hire an architect and professionals to do the work, but the Landis's also helped with the painting and planned several of the features, themselves.

"We got some of our ideas from friends," Mrs. Landis said. "They were a great help because many of them had redone parts of their own homes and had helpful ideas for us. In fact, we originally planned to modernize it more, but they talked us out of it," she added.

The first step in restoring it was to cement the basement and fix the steps. Originally, there had been an egg cellar beneath the living room which has now been made into a laundry.

The biggest problem the Landis's encountered in their restoration was the garage door. Previous to the remodeling, the living room had served as a small one-car garage. To do this, a hole has been knocked through the 20-inch thick stone walls, and a door placed there. The garage had, however, outlived its usefulness with

Floriculture and hort students receive honors

By JOANNE SPAHR

Willow Street, Pa.– When the Hans Herr Chapter of the Future Farmers of America get together to honor their top students, they have to make up two lists of names and have a double set of awards ready to hand out. This is due to the fact that the chapter is made up of both horticulture and floriculture students from Willow Street Vo-Tech School. And, while many of the members are girls and most grow flowers instead of swine or steers, they still receive many of the same awards as the other FFA chapters and look forward to the annual awards banquet with the same amount of anticipation. This year's annual parent member banquet was held at the Willow Street Vo-Tech School on March 24 at which time the highest excelling students were honored.

In floriculture, the most outstanding first year member was Marvin Stanley, Nottingham Rl, who received the star greenhand award. Jody Moore, New Providence, the outstanding member in floriculture, received the Star Chapter Farmer Award. Because of her talents she also received the Dekalb award.

Jackee Smith, Millersville, was cited for her placement in ag production as well as her crop production.

Randall Snyder, Lancaster R6, president of the organization, won three awards during the evening's festivities. He received the county Bankers Award as well as the public speaking and outstanding floriculture student awards.

In the horticulture classes, Bertha Mertz, Peach Bottom Rl, walked away with three honors. She first received the $15 monetary gift from the Lancaster County Bankers Association, then the Dekalb award, as well as the Star Chapter Farmer honors in horticulture. Star Greenhand was Tammy Lefever, Strasburg. Receiving the foundation award for ornamental horticulture was Mike

MUELLER FRE-HEATER™

The Mueller Fre-Heater conserves energy and provides "free" hot water by capturing the heat now wasted!

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS:

Rather than using noisy, dust-creating fans with fragile, dirt collecting air-cooled condensers, the refrigerant is routed to a specially designed condenser/heat exchanger and its heat is transferred to the water.

A thermostatically controlled valve delivers 145° F water to a storage tank

In addition to the thermostatic valve, a mixing valve is provided to permit "prepping" temperature water

Thus, the Fre-Heater delivers two temperatures of water — prepping and washing.

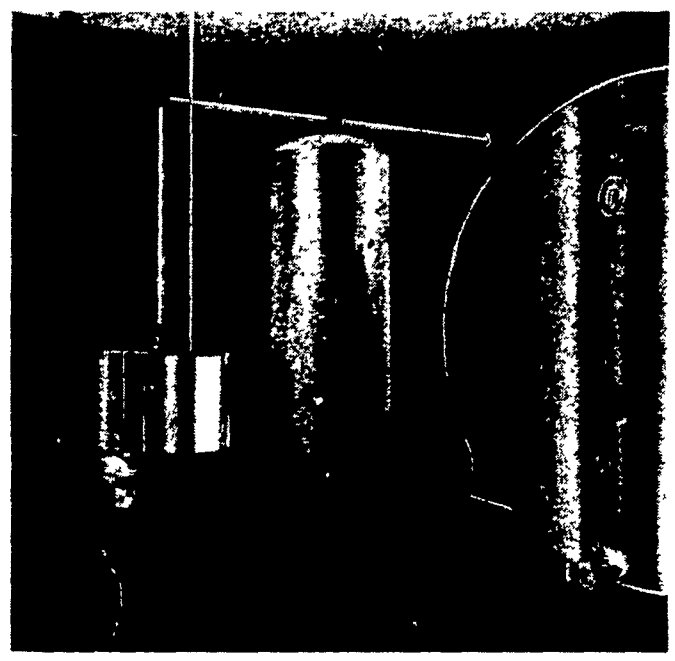
Tests indicate the Fre-Heater consumes 10% less power than an air-cooled system . . . and you get Free Hot Water!

ELIMINATES REFRIGERATION SERVICE PROBLEMS!

The most common causes of slow cooling in bulk milk cooling systems are related to the air-cooled condenser

The Fre-Heater eliminates these problems because:

- There is no air-cooled condenser
- The Fre-Heater is installed indoors
- There are no noisy fans to fail
- The head pressure is very stable — assuring longer compressor life
- There are no cold weather starting problems, plus . . . the Fre-Heater conserves energy and produces Free Hot Water!



HOW MUCH WATER CAN BE GENERATED?

There are many variables, so this question cannot be answered directly, however, a rule of thumb is that a Fre Heater operating on 60° F well water will produce a volume of 145° F water similar to the amount of milk produced during a milking

A petting zoo was part of the 4-H Expo in the Park City Shopping mall last week. Doug Hershberger, Quarryville, aroused a lot of attention with his calf. Also part of the zoo were two lambs, two goat kids, and two pigs.

Lancaster Shoppers take a look at today's 4-H

By JOANNE SPAHR

LANCASTER, Pa. -- "There's a whole bunch of 4-H'ers running around the Watt and Shand mall," said the blonde dungareed shopper to her friend.

"Yeh, and did you see that you can get your picture taken like in Hee-Haw with the farmer and his wife," said her similarly dressed, kerchiefed friend.

These two girls, Deb Shenk and Cindy Branley, who are both sophomores at Millersville State College, were at the Park City shopping mall on Friday afternoon buying Spring clothes and taking advantage of their last few days of Spring break. Having different tastes, the girls split up after a few futile attempts at scavenging the stores together, and ended up in the center of the mall at the end of their day discussing the 4-H Expo which took place from last Thursday to Saturday.

Not unaccustomed to the many varied mall displays held at Park City, the girls did say that they liked the photography club's display with its backdrop of Grant Wood's "American Gothic." This "American Gothic," however, featured cutouts instead of faces which tempted shoppers to supply their own countenances for a picture. The photography club's display won them first place in one of five divisions of award handed out.

The college girls also liked

Scott Lefever, Pequea R1, won top honors in placement in agricultural production for horticulture and Karen Eckman, a first year student, was cited for agriculture sales and service.

Cynthia Murphy, floriculture teacher, and Richard Skethway, plant manager for Agway, Inc., Paradise, received honorary membership in the chapter.

On hand to witness the presentations of awards and to take part in the program were two of Lancaster County's FFA celebrities-Marcia Hess, FFA state princess, and Randy Ranck, FFA state president, both of Quarryville. Miss Hess is a member of the Hans Herr chapter where she was a floriculture student.

She and Ranck are neighbors, although Ranck is a member of the Solanco FFA Chapter.

Pretty plants take more than chance

Berks Co. Reporter

READING, Pa. -- Are youare you aware that 95 per cent of all house plants don't like direct sunlight, even though it is the main ingredient needed for their growth? If you didn't, you can join the ranks of over 120 farm women and guests who attended the Berks County Farmers Association Ladies Day Out program held at the Abraham Lincoln Hotel, here, on March 16.

This affair is an annual event for women belonging to the Berks County Farmers Association. The speaker for the morning was Debbie Flay of "Debbie's Plants and Macrame," Reading. Debbie told the group to learn the plants by their families, saying, "It is much easier to care for them that way." Plants of the same family require the same care, the florist explained.

Debbie also told the group that water is the second most important ingredient to a plant's health, and that 95 per cent all plants die because of over-watering.

"It is better to under-water than to over-water," she noted. "Use a water meter or your finger to tell when they need it,"

"But," she cautioned, "don't just feel the top of the soil-push your finger in to the first knuckle."

As an explanation for her last statement, she said, "The top of the soil is always dry."

She also pointed out that the dishes on the bottom of the plant pots are not reservoirs, so when the water starts to trickle out of the bottom, the plant has had enough.

Debbie then proceeded to discuss, by family, the plants she has on display. The families that like humidity are good for kitchens or bathrooms. Misting is often recommended for these plants.

"I don't feel that misting is always necessary for most plants, but if you do it, don't go overboard." Misters are used to add humidity, they are not a watering method, she cautioned the group.

Debbie pointed out that house plant production has been increasing in the last few years. Spider plants, she remarked, helped to get the plant "boom" started.

"If you have one, don't touch its leaves because they are very delicate and will turn brown," She added, "Fluoride is no good for Spider plants, either." Fluoride can kill about two-thirds of all house plants. The speaker then advised the women that, if fluoride is added to their local drinking water suppies, rain or spring water would be better for the plants.

Debbie Flay demonstrates plants at Ladies Day Out.

Debbie also gave tips on transplanting.

"Don't use dirt from your garden," she said. "Use sterilized potting soil with perilite in it. Transplanting is a very critical point for plants. The soil needs to be very moist before putting the plant into it, then only a very little water should be added. Wait a week after that before you add water again."

"Also," she stated, "do not transplant more than three times in a year because this disrupts the plant's life cycle." Wait until at least four weeks from transplanting before fertilizing a plant, the speaker advised the group. The new "home" is enough of a shock, don't compound it with fertilizer.

Dust can also be a problem, the ladies were told. The leaves are the structures from which they breathe, so they should not be dirty.

"A mister can remove some of the dirt, or you can just wipe each leaf off with a damp cloth on some plants," she said. However, plants with "hair" on their leaves cannot be misted or they will turn brown, the speaker continued.

If pests are a problem, try to get rid of them by yourself, Debbie instructed, before you buy a commercial product. No problems should arise, however, as long as the plants are cared for properly. If a plant does have insects, remove it from the others. The bottom side of the leaves will tell the tale if you suspect insects. This is where the pests will usually be evident.

To remove the insects, cover the soil with paper or something similar and turn the plant upside down, then shake gently. After doing this, use a mild detergent and wipe each leaf off individually. Next, rinse the plant and repeat the process twice a week if necessary.

Before finishing the plant lecture, Debbie advised the ladies about fertilization of house plants. For the average person, she recommended a mild fertilizer which can be mixed with water. This way fertilizer can be added when the plants are watered and it is less likely that the plants will be over-fertilized.

Outrageous April Fools recipes

Sauerkaut cake, mayonnaise cake, carrot cake -- they all sound unappetising, but when you taste them they're delicious. These are the kind of recipes we are featuring this week – the ones that turn you off when you hear their names, but turn you on when you try them.

I had considered sending for some earthworm recipes from Ron Gaddie, but never got around to it. Gaddie, an Ontario, Calif. resident, is the owner of Gaddie's North American Bait Farms, Inc., and for the second year is sponsoring a nationwide worm recipe contest. Gaddie says the number of entries has soured over last year – from 200 - 500.

Worms taste like shredded wheat, according to Gaddie. He says he likes them best in oatmeal cookies, but has eaten them with rice, sprinkled on the top of salads rather than bacon bits, with scrambled eggs, and with steak and gravy.

For those concerned about nutrition, Gaddie says the earthworms are 72 per cent protein and less than one per cent fat.

Gaddie said he once ate worms every day for three months.

The only way he doesn't particularly like them is raw.

Oh, yes, be sure to check the last recipe in this week's column. It might come in handy for those large family reunions.

SALAD DRESSING CAKE

1-½ cups sugar
2 cups flour
Dash salt
1 cup salad dressing
3 tablespoons cocoa
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 cup hot water
1 teaspoon vanilla

Beat all ingredients for two minutes. Bake at 350 degrees F. oven for 30 minutes until done.

Mrs. Charles Biehl
Mertztown, Pa.

xxx

TOMATO SOUP CAKE

1 cup tomato soup
½ cup melted margarine
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground cloves
2 teaspoons baking powder
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 eggs

Add margarine to the soup and then add the eggs. Set aside. Sift the dry ingredients five times and add to the soup. Add vanilla, mix thoroughly. Bake one hour in greased loaf pan at 325 degrees F

Mrs Charles Biehl
Mertztown, Pa.

xxx

MONSTER COOKIES

12 eggs
4 cups brown sugar
4 cups white sugar
1 one-third cup vanilla
8 teaspoons soda
2 cups chopped nuts
1 pound butter (do not substitute)
3 pounds peanut butter
18 cups oatmeal
1 pound chocolate chips
1 pound coated chocolate candy bits
Needs no flour

Mix ingredients in order given. Mix by hand in a large dishpan. Drop by teaspoons onto cookie sheets and flatten. Bake at 350 degrees for 10 to 12 minutes. Do not overbake.

Mrs. Eli Wenger
Manheim, Pa.

xxx

DELICIOUS CARROT COOKIES

1 cup shortening (margarine)
¾ cup sugar
2 eggs
1 cup cooked mashed carrots
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon lemon

Cream margarine, sugar, and eggs. Add remaining ingredients. Drop and bake at 350 degrees F. These would be good frosted, also.

Mrs. Timothy Newswanger
Danville, Pa.

xxx

APRIL FOOL ANGEL GINGERBREAD NO GINGER

1 cup sugar
½ cup shortening
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup molasses
2 eggs
2 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon cloves
1 cup boiling water

Stir all dry ingredients in a greased baking pan. Pour in boiling water and stir well. Bake 30 minutes at 350 degrees F. That's right - no ginger! Delicious.

Harriet Greenawalt
Lancaster, Pa.

xxx

7-UP BAKED SWEET POTATOES

6 sweet potatos (cooked)
1 cup brown sugar
1 bottle (7 ounces) lemon-lime soft drink
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter
Cinnamon or nutmeg

Slice sweet potatos into casserole. In heavy skillet combine brown sugar, soft drink, salt, butter, and spice. Boil five minutes. Pour over sweet potatoes. Bake at 350 degrees until potatoes are soft

Harriet Greenawalt
Lancaster, Pa

CINNAMON PICKLES

Peel and take seeds out of large pickles. Cut into one inch chunks. Cook pickles until tender in clear water. Drain. Add two jars of maraschino cherries and juice (chopped). Bring syrup of seven cups sugar, ½ pint white vinegar, ½ teaspoon oil of cloves, and ½ teaspoon oil of cinnamon to boil and pour over pickles. Repeat three days. On fourth day heat all to boil and pack in clean, sterilized to seal.

Mrs. David Nunn
New Columbia, Pa.

xxx

JUNK DISH

1 pound hamburg, fried and drained
8 ounces noodles, cooked and drained
1 cup whole kernel corn
1 cup tomato soup, condensed
1 can water
Salt, pepper and garlic salt, to taste

Combine hamburg, noodles, corn, soup, water and seasonings. Place in a buttered casserole. Top with grated cheese. Bake in a 350 degree oven approximately 20 minutes.

Mrs. David W. Nunn
New Columbia, Pa.

APRIL FOOL MOCK MINCE MEAT PIE

2 apples
2 green tomatoes
1 cup sugar
½ cup raisins
1 tablespoon butter
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon salt

Chop apples, tomatoes, and raisins. Mix everything together and boil five minutes. Bake between two crusts. Bake at 350 to 375 degrees F. until done.

xxx

DELUXE ELEPHANT STEW

1 Asian elephant (5-½ tons)
500 gallons tomato juice
2 tons carrots
3 tons potatoes, diced
100 crates celery, diced
500 lbs. barley
1 rabbit (optional)

GO IH BIG RED

ANNOUNCING THE IH FORAGE BOX BONANZA

These big boxes hold up to 6 tons of silage to keep you on the move in the field; then unload fast at the front end once you get to the silo. Both models are similar in design: The 105 has a 3-speed ratchet apron drive; the 110, a 2-speed roller chain drive.

- Choice of box sizes: 7 x 14 or 7 x 16 ft., with 4 or 6-ft. high sides.
- Extra-strong quality wood and steel construction, including thick, tight-fitting flooring.
- Big 16-in. cross conveyor auger dumps material fast, is not susceptible to breakage as with chain conveyors.
- For safety, boxes have sensitive trip bars that shut off mechanism should anyone climb on the side of the box.
- Boxes mount on standard wagon gears of 8-ton capacity and up.
- Many options, attachments available, including adjustable metal roof.

Formerly a workshop, the kitchen in the Landis guest house shows the white plastered walls, the ceiling beams, and the chair rail.

Dwarfed by the brick farm house to its right, the "old house" of the Earl Landis home will be part of the Lancaster Co. Farmers Association Heritage Trail Home tour on April 20.

the advent of big luxury cars, but the door remained.

"We replaced it with a window," Mrs. Landis explains, looking out through the glass toward the barn.

The living room, itself, is done in Williamsburg red with white plastered walls and partially exposed ceiling beams. It also features a fire corner, or walk-in fireplace which the Landis's did a lot of work on.

"We replastered the inside," points out Mrs. Landis, and we replaced the floor bricks, but the mantel is an original."

The Landis's did do some constructive tampering in the living room for the sake of beauty. Originally, the ceiling beams had not been exposed, but when the remodeling was done, part of the plaster was broken away from them and they were refinished.

Mrs. Landis's father-in-law, Earl, who previously owned the property, and who knows the history of the farm better than anyone else, explained that the main log in the home is solid walnut which is indicative of the age of the building.

"There were lots of walnut trees in this area in the late 1700's", he says.

The floor in the living room, as well as in the upstairs, is solid wood.

"Most of the floors are authentic, although the living room floor was replaced from an old home in Leola," notes Mrs. Landis. The Landis's sanded them down and varnished them.

All of the doors in the home, as well as most of the hardware, are authentic, also. Probably the most outstanding portal is the Indian door used as the main entrance into the home. An indian door has an extra panel on the outside which slides over the glass in the upper half and fastens into place to protect the window panes. These panes, in the Landis's Indian door, as in most windows in the house, are made of the old wavy glass now much sought after by antique lovers.

"We have as much old glass in the house as possible," points out Mrs. Landis. They also have as many original pieces of hardware as they could find, with the predominant piece the German latch.

"What we didn't have, we collected at flea markets and antique shops," she explained.

The upstairs bedroom feature another type of door--the Christian door, with original latches, as well.

The master bedroom is done in Williamsburg green, and the second bedroom in Williamsburg gold. The smaller bedroom has a unique feature--an extending brace, originally meant to "hold the house up", which has since lost its usefulness. Instead of removing the brace from the room, the Landis's refinished it in the same manner as the ceiling beams in the living room and use it as a bench.

The interior of the home is not the only segment of the house which was refinished, however. After sandblasting the stone on the outside, they remortered and re-roofed the dwelling. They also used the Williamsburg colors on the exterior.

After the six months of work and planning that went into restoring the home, the Landis's won't even be using it themselves. Instead, they plan to make it into a tourist guest home, and are presently having their brochures made up.

"We kept all the furnishings as simple as possible because of the use it will be getting," said Mrs. Landis with a smile. But she

BALANCED NUTRITION vs. HIGH SUPPLEMENT COSTS

We got 'em licked.

Everyone wants to be sure of balanced nutrition. After all, it's the performance of your herd that means profits for you. With Mol-Mix® liquid supplements, your supplement dollar not only helps guarantee your cattle's performance, but also helps guarantee your net profits. Mol-Mix guarantees the moistures and sugars in our standard formulations and ingredients like corn distiller's solubles, condensed fermented corn extractives, phosphoric acid, ammonium polyphosphate and our unique "buffered release" formula provide the balanced nutrition so essential for top milk production And you know what that means for your profits

Even today, with so many supplements compromising quality for cost, Mol-Mix still includes the very ingredients that continue to keep us "The Liquid Leader"™. With Mol-Mix, your supplement costs are a good investment toward the performance and profits you will receive in the future.

This spring, make Mol-Mix liquid supplements a part of your feeding program. We're not talking about something that will only add to your feeding costs . . . we're talking about the bottom line.

the "computer"; supplied from Penn State. The "computer" was an electronically lit quiz on 4-H programs.

However, these were not the only displays available for shoppers to ogle at. There were 16 exhibits, all of which won an award of some type.

The awards for displays were broken down into five categories– foods, general, crafts, horse, and agriculture.

The first place winner in the foods division was the Mount Joy Busy Bakers. Their display told of eating a balanced diet, which includes foods from the four food groups – meat, dairy, fruits and vegetables, and breads and cereals.

Second place in the foods division was the Ephrata Teen 4-H, and third place went to the Mountville Community 4-H Club.

"Or," Debbie said, "only fertilize in the Spring, Summer, and Fall with regular fertilizer--house plants don't require much."

She also discussed in detail the care of several different house plants. The spider plant was one of these.

"Spiders are one of the closest plants to the human body," she said. "They produce babies in much the same manner as women do. The babies develop on shoots which are similar to an umbilical cord," she explained. These babies draw nourishment from their mother plants the same as a fetus draws from its mother.

In conclusion, she stated, "With a lot of light, a little water, and some care, everyone can grow green.

Lashon Bussell, Manheim, and a friend from the Boots and Saddles 4-H Club demonstrated polishing a saddle in front of the club's award winning horse display at the 4-H Expo in the Park City shopping mall last week.

Franklin D. Roosevelt appointed the first woman cabinet member, Frances Perkins, as secretary of labor.

He also named the first woman as U.S. ambassador to a foreign country, Ruth Bryan Owens, daughter of William Jennings Bryan. She went to Denmark.

The top prize horse club booth sported a video tape made by the Boots and Saddles 4-H club during the past few months. This tape showed all the care and training that goes into owning a horse. Members were also on hand to demonstrate polishing a saddle when the need arose.

Second place in the horse category went to the Broken Bit 4-H Club; third to Rough Riders 4-H Club; and fourth to Silver Spurs 4-H Club.

In the crafts division, the Photography Club took first; Alan Mays, who featured an individual entomology display, took second; and the Foresters, the Ephrata Area 4-H Club, took third.

Under agriculture, the Elm-Penryn Community 4-H Club took a blue ribbon with their swine display. They exhibited two pigs which squealed for everyone's delight when picked up.

Taking second in the agricultural category was the Red Rose Beef and Sheep Club; and taking third was the Central Tractor Club.

And, under "general" division, the home economics display by the Mount Joy Home Economics Club featured garments. The red ribbon in this category went to the Brickville Community Club, and third went to the Penn Manor Community Club.

My Thoughts

And welcome to them

By JOANNE SPAHR
Associate Editor

By JOANNE SPAHR

I thrust my head into the hole and my body clumsily lurched along with it. There I was again, encased in the diabolical development my brother had masterminded and newly constructed in the straw mow--his "best straw fort, yet," as he described it.

At the tender age of seven, I was still developing my concept of "House Beautiful," and so far, this was it.

Straw forts were magical and mysterious and just like a labyrinth to crawl through. But, unfortunately, when my brother had anything to do with the blueprints, they were full of pitfalls that made the Skeezicks or the bad Pipsewah of the Uncle Wiggley game look tame. I rarely made it through a fort without a scratched face, bleeding knees, or a scraped shin.

My brother's favorite trick was to build a long straight-way through one section of the straw mow, and suddenly, without any warning signs, place a bale perpendicular to the line of traffic and have the whole thing take a sudden right-angle turn.

Of course, when little sister came rip-roaring through the pitch black tunnel leaving little clouds of chaff as she went, she'd ram full force into the bale and add a few new holes to the collection of straw scars she was collecting on her forehead. To him, this was fun.

With all this running through my head, there I was, half in and half out of the untested fort. I still had time to back out, literally, as a matter of fact, because my legs were as yet in the safety zone outside the tunnel. But once my whole body entered the confines of the fort, I would be in his deadly clutches.

However, he had promised me, as he always did, that this time, for sure, the fort wasn't really bugged, and I really did want to take a crawl through his "best fort yet," and feel what it was like. So, like a dummy, I started down the primrose path to destruction.

As naive as I was, I did, however, have a keen memory of how I received each and every scar on my forehead, and each scratch on my legs, so I cautiously crawled through the darkness.

I had gone three-quarters of the way through, and still hadn't run into one right angle turn. Each turn had been easy to follow and I hadn't once run head-first into a bale.

Somewhere ahead in the darkness, I saw a small light - I was almost through - with no accidents. Ya-Ho. And, there couldn't be anymore turns, or I couldn't have seen the end of the tunnel. I was elated and put on the gas.

Keeping my eye on the light at the end of the tunnel, I made my last ditch effort to escape from the straw fort. Suddenly, without warning, the light went out, my nose was nearly ripped off, my forehead scraped along the rough edge of a bale, and my whole body became wedged between three bales.

He'd made an elephant trap.

Instead of putting a bale in front of me to run into, he had taken one out from my path of travel, so I could fall into a hole. And, there I was - stuck, just like the elephants on the T.V. safaris.

As I stuck there, sobbing and mapping out my story which I would wail at my mother as soon as I freed myself from my prison, I heard my brother yell something through the bales.

"Be careful of the tarantula nest in the elephant trap," he yelled. "Those spiders can kill you, you know."

In a flash I extricated myself from my trap and never stopped running until I was in the arms of my mother, who was extremely amazed to hear that the European Wolf Spider had chosen to set up residence in our barn.

CASE
Blooming good deals on Case 43-80 hp tractors
Case welcomes spring with an explosion of values on all of our low-profile tractors. We're blasting prices — and that means savings for you!
Each of the five models comes with standard 12 speed synchromesh transmission, hydrostatic power steering, differential lock, power take-off and a three point hitch.
A rugged box section main frame gives these tractors more reserve to absorb loading and tillage shocks and stress.
Plus you can order a 12 speed power shift transmission on the 1200 and 1400 series. That means four speeds in each of three ranges for on-the-go shifting in field or farmyard.
Combined with low fuel consumption, big drawbar power and low maintenance costs, these Case units give you top value per dollar.
Come on over and let's see how Case can fit into your growing plans. But hurry, the season is short. Take advantage of the Case Spring Blast of Big Savings . . . stop in today!

Ladies Day Out promises fun, facts

York, Pa. - Ladies' Day Out for 1977 York County Farmers' Association women promises a variety of fun and facts to member farm women on April 28, at Avalong Dairy Restaurant from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. with registration at 9:30.

Phyllis Gross, chairman, has announced the line-up of program events which include the "Food is Cheaper, Compared to What?" film featuring Jerry Litton, late Senator from Missouri; the annual talent contest; legislative challenges by political education program chairman Carolyn Rutter and Rep. A. Carville Foster before the chicken luncheon.

"The Case for the Professional Farm Wife" by Gail McPherson will kick-off the afternoon session preceeding the skit "Super Chick Can Do It!" Slides from the various public relations projects of the women's committee will be interspersed.

Hook up to the RUGGED ONE

- 3,200 Gallon Capacity
- Front Unloading — Left Hand Side Discharge
- Low, Wide Spread Pattern
- Discharge Rate Controlled From Tractor Seat
- Four Bladed Impeller & Four Bladed Chopper Turn At Same Speed As P.T.O.

Here it is, the RUGGED ONE . . . from PATZ, built as only PATZ will build them . . . to last, and last.

The PATZ 3200 has a tank constructed of 3/16 inch steel and a tank frame and hitch frame of ¼ inch steel with reinforced tank ends. The PATZ 3200 tank interior has an epoxy primer coating . . . the best known protection against the corrosive action of liquid manure.

You can unload in minutes with a wide, spread pattern of even distribution. All working parts are in the front of the tank within easy view and operation from the tractor seat. Safety, too, has been built into the PATZ 3200 with independent walking beam axles and surge brakes in ALL FOUR WHEELS.

When it's a PATZ . . . It Pays. get the PATZ FACTS FIRST

Four-bladed 21½ inch impeller. Flow control from tractor seat governs rate of discharge inside the tank, a whirling four-bladed chopper turns at same speed as P T O to cut semi-solids to slurry for better distribution

Surge brakes on all four wheels. Full length steel frame resting on independent walking beam axles with tandem wheels to even out rough terrain

ATTENTION CORN GROWERS!
It's corn planting time again, we have fine quality seed corn to offer this year. If you pick and shell, we invite you to try 80-X or 790-A both are medium season. If you like full season try PA-8703 or 861. Both did extremely well last year. 806 has been a well liked hybrid for many years. For silage we recommend 900 with lots of grain. Prices range, $19 - $23 in flats and rounds from $11 - $19. We give quantity discounts. We have been growing seed corn for 30 years. We also have oats, clover and alfalfa seeds. We also sell Atrazine, Princep and other spray materials.

Keep your milk factory on overtime.

DENSITY PLUS™

A full day's production for a full day's feed. That's what you expect from the cows in your milk factory.

But now you can expect more. A lot more. And you can have production that lives up to those expectations. By feeding Density Plus.

Master Mix Density Plus is the overtime dairy production feed. Your [illegible] and-a-half costs.

That's because Density Plus "Energized" Feeds contain more energy per pound than ordinary feed. And all Density Plus Feeds are formulated for maximum nutritional density.

More than production boosters, Density Plus Complete Dairy Feeds are packed with high energy plus correct levels of vitamins, minerals, protein, fiber and fat. Important nutritional levels that are guaranteed correct. In writing.

No matter how many workers you have in your herd, there's a Density Plus formulation that's right for them peak feed consumption levels. For more overtime pay on your milkcheck, contact your Master Mix dealer about Density Plus. Or write: Central Soya Company, Inc., Feed Division, Fort Wayne, Indiana 46802.

Beat the weather

Get the most feed value out of your hay with Beacon Hay Pre-Serv*

You get more milk per ton of hay when you treat your hay with Beacon Hay Pre-Serv. Hay Pre-Serv lets you cut hay as much as 26 hours earlier, at moisture levels up to 25%.

This means a larger hay crop, with less leaf loss and shattering, and less risk of weather damage. Hay Pre-Serv is easily applied to baled, chopped or stacked hay and prevents mold, spoilage, oxidation and excessive heating.

You get better color, improved palatability and more digestible nutrients in every ton of hay you cut.

If you grow succulent forage crops, make the most of them with Beacon Silage Pre-Serv.* With Silage Pre-Serv you can harvest at moisture levels from 40 to 70%, and get as much as 30% more feeding value per ton of roughage.

Dauphin COUNTY DHIA MONTHLY REPORT

John Hertzler's "Etta" had the highest butterfat production for records completed last month, beating her nearest rival, Robert Schaffer's "Valetin," by a score of 947 pounds to 805 pounds. "Etta" tested 4.3 per cent on 21,946 pounds of milk, which was surpassed by quite a few cows in spite of the commanding lead she had in the butterfat race. Three cows swept past her in milk production, with R. Own Dairy In.'s "No. 32" taking the crown at 23,054 pounds.

'Chemical only as good as applied'

Maryland farmer describes his methods for 200 bu./acre corn yields

WYE MILLS, MD - Each year an increasing number of growers are asking themselves whether they should apply their own pesticides and liquid fertilizers, or should they let a custom applicator do this work for them.

"It's not an easy decision," admits Howard Meredith, who farms near here. "I know because a couple of years ago I was asking these same questions. And there are so many points you have to take into consideration; among these are cost efficiency, labor, convenience, time input, and how effective the end result is. After weighing these various factors, I realized that I should start applying my own chemicals, especially herbicides."

Prior to this decision, Meredith employed a custom applicator. According to the Talbot County grower, this practice gave him fair overall weed control, but with some irregularities at times. "When the weather was not just right I got less than adequate weed control, usually due to lack of moisture after application." Yet, Meredith was content with custom application, that is until his johnsongrass problem continued to increase.

"When you have johnsongrass, or any tough grassy weed for that matter, we prefer incorporated herbicides since they combine chemical and cultural control that performs best on these weeds," Meredith points out. "And with johnsongrass you want to be assured of control, otherwise the nuisance will intensify and take over your crop."

Preplant incorporation of herbicides improves herbicide efficiency. Incorporation is also more dependable; it adds the extra insurance that the chemical will be uniformly mixed into the soil at the right time and at the right depth for maximum weed control effectiveness. In addition, incorporation protects the herbicide against dissipation from wind, rain, or sunlight - all common drawbacks with herbicides that are surface applied. Furthermore, incorporation removes the need to rely on rainfall to move the herbicide into the weed seed zone.

With his move to incorporated herbicides, Meredith continued to rely upon custom applicators, but became increasingly dissatisfied with this practice.

"Custom application became an inconvenience," explains Meredith. "You always had to be on hand to work the herbicide into the ground behind the sprayer; this meant you had to be able to run when the custom men showed up. This could be at three in the afternoon if they had a previous job - sometimes you were incorporating late at night and be in such a hurry that you would not incorporate the chemical right for the best results.

"To make matters worse, weed control wasn't as good as it could be," Meredith adds. "A chemical is only as good as it is applied. If you don't put the chemical on correctly, control suffers. For example, by following a custom applicator who may be spraying a 30 foot swath with a disc that is only 14 or 16 feet wide, there is a great chance for error. Areas of the field may be skipped when incorporating, or too much time elapse and the chemical may start to volitalize. In either case, the chemical isn't properly worked into the soil."

When incorporating, it is important that the herbicide be well mixed into the top two or three inches of soil immediately after application. This can most readily be done by rigging the sprayer between the tractor and incorporation equipment, with the tank mounted on the tractor. As the ground is worked for planting, the herbicide is incorporated in the same trip across the field. It is best to disc the soil twice after spraying, preferably in different directions, to insure uniform coverage.

Proper Equipment Boosts Control

"When I was first introduced to the spray equipment I presently own a Chem-Farm unit, I was impressed by its versatility and simplicity," says Meredith. "A friend of mine had the equipment and was pleased with it so I thought I'd give it a try.

"When you are set up yourself, you have more control over the entire application." Meredith reports, "and by mounting the spray-kit on the incorporation equipment, you are assured of a thorough mixing of the herbicide into the soil with no danger of skips or chemical volitalization."

There are other advantages to setting up with your own equipment, according to Meredith. "This new equipment has helped speed up planting - I incorporate herbicides combined with liquid fertilizers and plant in the same trip across the field. With the sprayer mounted on the incorporation equipment, the chemicals are put on low to the ground, virtually eliminating wind drift which can hamper custom work. It has saved me money, too - I no longer have to pay custom men two or three dollars per acre for their services. Lastly, its more convenient - when I want to quit at the end of the day, I can - the herbicides and fertilizers are on, the field has been worked, and the seed planted."

Meredith's success in rigging up and doing it himself prompted him to take the concept one step further. Knowing many other growers would like the idea, he applied for and became a Chem-Farm distributor for the Pennsylvania-Delmarva area. He now handles the firm's full line including spray kits, tanks, chisel plows, and mulch treader incorporators. Business has been good, he reports.

"However," Meredith is quick to point out, "I'm still first a farmer." And a very good farmer, too, planting 1,200 acres of corn and 800 of soybeans. In addition, for the past five years he has been in the Dekalb "200" Club (now the DeKalb "Yieldmasters" Club), and four of those years have seen him as the Talbot County Corn Club winner - one year yielding over 200 bushels per acre.

Being a farmer, Meredith can easily relate to the problems of other growers. That is why he holds meetings to demonstrate setting up spray equipment, calibration, and proper agitation. "I can remember when I was a bit wary about rigging-up for these same reasons," he confides. "Now I know it is really very simple."

Weed Control Critical For High Yields

"I feel good weed control is essential if you want high yields," the champion corn grower explains, "and for me that means controlling my johnsongrass problem."

Meredith says that a Sutan+-atrazine tank mix, which he uses on all his corn, gives him 95 percent control over all of his weeds. But he feels that Eradicane will do a better job of johnsongrass rhizome suppression and should be applied on heavily infested fields. As for soybeans, he applied a double rate of Treflan to those areas with a large johnsongrass population - about 150 acres. The remainder of the crop gets a Vernam-Treflan tank mix. According to Meredith, the Vernam-Treflan combination looks good - no grasses - but more importantly, it gives good johnsongrass seedling control and offers a way out of the double-rate Treflan program a year sooner.

With the control he's now getting Meredith says he is not about to switch chemicals or his new application technique. "My advice is that by applying your own herbicides, accuracy improves, resulting in better weed control."

PFA leader meets with congressional delegation

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Extension of the present Federal farm program was requested here recently by a state farm spokesman meeting with the Pennsylvania Congressional delegation. Eugene Thompson, president of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association made the request in a banquet address.

PFA is a general farm organization with more than 21,000 family members in Pennsylvania with 53 local county units and is affiliated with the American Farm Bureau Federation at the national level.

Thompson, an Indiana County dairyman, also called for moving the responsibility for pesticide regulations from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, and opposed legislation now being considered to legalize secondary boycotts by organized labor.

The farm leader told congressmen that PFA favored extension of the present Agricultural and Consumer Act of 1973, because in his opinion it was "moving agriculture back to the free market system". This act is scheduled to expire this year, but Congress is expected to enact major farm legislation to replace it. The present farm program covers all major areas of agriculture production.

"Government farm programs to improve farm income should be designed and administered to enhance market opportunities," he said, "to the end that farmers will earn higher incomes in the marketplace, and will not be dependent on government payments for a major portion of their income.

"Farm income has increased substantially since the market was relieved of the surpluses accumulated under previous programs. The marketplace is working. We have confidence that it will continue to work," the farmer said.

"Any moves to put government back in the business of farming would be counter-productive," he reasoned.

On another matter, legalization of secondary boycotts, Thompson said his organization was in strong opposition to such legislation. "We have ssen what the secondary boycotts did to agriculture," he stated.

Presently, hearings are being held in Congress to consider House Resolution 3500 (Common Situs), which would legalize secondary boycotts for organized labor.

Thompson listed reasons oppose this proposal: Greater imbalance in labor-management relations, periodic total stoppage in all union projects because of varying labor contract expiration dates, forced unionization of employees working for other contractors on the same project with union employees of another employer, a complete revision of the relationship and structure of the construction industry.

The farm leader told the legislators that his organization would like to see the responsibility for pesticide regulations be moved from EPA to USDA because the agency is "not capable of carrying out the charge it received from Congress."

According to Thompson, EPA was requested by law to classify all pesticides into different categories -- general and restricted – by October 1976. It failed to do so and received a requested deadline extension.

Some 300,000 persons in 45 states have been certified to use restricted pesticides, but EPA has not published a restricted pesticide list.

"EPA has issued conflicting regulations," Thompson said.

The agency, he stated, had made "a mockery" of the laws governing pesticide regulations.

He stated that USDA had a proven record in the area of pesticide regulations, and should have this responsibility.

The Pennsylvania Farmers' Association was in Washington, D.C. to discuss these and other agricultural issues with Pennsylvania congressmen. Several hundred farmers took part in the trip.

Warwick vo-ag involved in projects

LITITZ, Pa. - The vocational agriculture classes at Warwick High School are presently in the midst of several projects and planning for others.

During classroom time right now, a landscaping crew comprised of Steve Marks, Bill Crokett, Glen Roberts, and Don Allison are doing work for the Lititz Elementary School. And, working on tractor repairs in the vocational agriculture shop are Dave Snavely and Lowell Becker.

On April 14, the group has planned a donkey basketball game in the high school gym. Warwick Vo-ag will play the wrestling team.

Fifty-year food price study shows farmer getting bad deal

HARRISBURG, Pa. - Agriculture Secretary Kent D. Shelhamer has released a survey made by his department of national food prices and food production costs, covering the fifty-year period from 1926 to 1976.

The long-term survey used the years 1925-1926, 1951-52, and 1976 as statistical barometers. The Monthly Labor Review furnished the prices for 1976. Other reference sources utilized by the Agriculture Department's Bureau of Rural Affairs, which conducted the survey, included the U.S. Department of Commerce, the Pennsylvania Department of Commerce, the U.S. Department of Labor, the Pennsylvania Department of Labor and Industry, the Pennsylvania AFL-CIO and Agway, Inc.

Pennsylvania's food prices and food production costs ran closely parallel to the national picture throughout the 50-year period, Shelhamer said. He noted that the price of eggs, "long a conversational staple to the housewife, has increased only 25 per cent on a national level since Calvin Coolidge was president." He said the study shows eggs selling at a little over 69 cents a dozen in the Roaring Twenties, as compared to just over 87 cents a dozen in 1976.

An interesting comparison, Shelhamer pointed out, lies in the fact that laying mash, extensively used in poultry operations, went from $40.80 a ton on a national average in 1935 to $158.00 a ton in January 1976, an increase of 295 per cent.

At the opposite end of the national price spectrum over 50 years, Shelhamer observed, was the all-American favorite, the hamburger. While eggs rose only 25 per cent, hamburger went from 14 cents a pound in 1925 to nearly 90 cents a pound last year, a price hike of 509 per cent.

Other items listed for the fifty-year national survey included: American cheese, up 367 per cent; bread, up 275 per cent; cabbage, up 264 per cent; sugar, up 228 per cent; cornflakes, up 209 per cent; potatoes, up 194 per cent; canned corn, up 151 per cent; and chicken, up just 52 per cent since 1925.

Meanwhile, Shelhamer declared, "Production costs for Pennsylvania farmers have skyrocketed parallel to the huge national increase." In 1925 a two-plow tractor sold for a nationwide median price of $785, which means the 1976 counterpart was up 945 per cent in 50 years at last year's cost of $8200, he added.

Shelhamer went on to say, "Pennsylvania family farmers have no choice but to pay top dollar for production tools, while their net farm income trails the national average dramatically." USDA's Economic Research Service listed net income per farm in Pennsylvania in 1975 at $4810, he said, while the national average for the same year was $9100.

"I know these facts will not make the housewife any happier at the checkout counter," Shelhamer said. "What we must do is make adjustments somewhere between the time the farmer sells his product and the time the housewife moves her cart into the checkout aisle."

The former House Agriculture Committee chairman called his department's producer-to-customer marketing program a "solid step" toward helping the squeeze. he said marketing and packaging of food was another area of his departmental concern for the farmer and housewife. Shelhamer said he is considering awarding Pennsylvania State University a research contract aimed at uncovering better conservation practices in marketing and packaging practices which he said could benefit both the farmer and housewife.

He additionally cited the Seed and Garden program coordinated by his department as an offshoot of the Governor's Anti-Inflationary Garden Program as a realistic means available to families to cope with high food prices.

Lancaster Co. Society 12

At their March meeting, members of Lancaster County Farm Women Society 12 were informed about "Contact", a public service in the Lancaster area formerly known as "Night Ministry." Mrs. Edith Middleton, who is affiliated with the organization, was the guest speaker at the get together held at the home of Mrs. Clarence Witmer in Highville.

During the business session, the women voted to send a donation to the Easter Seal campaign. Emma Kiperling was also accepted as a new member.

The group was invited to tour the Green Acres Garden Show to be held at the Farm and Home Center on April 21.

Berks Co. Society 6

The Berks County Society of Farm Women Group 6, held their March meeting at the residence of Mrs. Steve Fisher, Oley R1. Mrs. William R. Hechler, Amity Park Road, Birdsboro R2, was the guest speaker. Twenty members and one guest attended. Mrs. Hechler's topic was, "Herbs For Use and Delight."

Mrs. Harold Snyder, vice president, conducted the business meeting. Mrs. Richard Schlegel, president, is recuperating from back surgery. A donation of $30 was given to the Oley Playground Association.

The following dates of affairs were given: April 14-Bingo at Berks Heim; April 23-Square dance at Hamburg Field House; May 11-Berks Heim Tea; May 11-Spring Rally at York Fairgrounds.

The April 19, meeting will be held at the residence of Mrs. Earl Mensch, Boyertown, R4 at 8 p.m.

York Co. Society 6

MANCHESTER, Pa. The York County-Society of Farm Women, Group 6, decided to give a $25 donation for library books to the local public schools.

Four society officers will serve as ushers at the York County Farm Women's spring rally scheduled May 11 in Memorial Hall at the York Fairgrounds.

Sada Melhorn and Marian Hewitt were appointed to select the site for the Christmas banquet.

The April 13 meeting will focus on safety. Mary Fink will be the hostess.

York Co. Society 20

York County Farm Women Group 20 met on March 8 with 16 members present. The meeting included a kitchen shower of gifts for the Robert Strickler family, Stewartstown, who suffered a house fire on New Year's Day. Gifts for the Stricklers may still be given to Ruth Hendricks.

On March 29, members will sponsor an afternoon program at Pleasant Acres for the guests. Participants are asked to meet at the York Federal Savings and Loan office in Shrewsbury at 12:30 p.m. and to bring with them two wrapped gifts to be used for games and contest winners. The Society will present bedpads to the Pleasant Acres staff for use in the home. The pad-making is an on-going project of the Group 20 members.

Speaker for the March meeting was Shrewsbury Police Chief, David Weston, who presented a program on "Dope Traffic."

Sarah Richardson, Ethel Zeigler, and Ardula Bose will serve as volunteers from the Shrewsbury Society to the York Hospital fete, May 20 and 21 at the fairgrounds.

The next scheduled meeting will be held on April

Cattle marketing not taught enough

By DIETER KRIEG

LANCASTER - "If cattle are not bought and sold properly, you're just spinning your wheels," says Bill Mc Coy, president of the Lancaster Livestock Exchange and the Lancaster Stock Yards. He made the remark at this years Cattle Feeders Day. The marketing executive also believes the present marketing system is in jeopardy.

One thing which would help solve the problem, McCoy suggests, is that the marketing of livestock be emphasized a little more in college curriculums. He believes it's not taught enough today and reasons it should be turned around. "Nutrition and breeding etc. are taught, but buying and selling is not taught," he commented before a group of about 200 Lancaster County beef producers.

"You must decide which program you will apply to your operation," the livestock marketing specialist said. "Basically, you're trying to provide a market for your crops through livestock feeding."

According to McCoy, buying and selling is as important as any other aspect of the meat production business. Profits or losses hang precariously in the balance while a number of farmers don't know how to make the most of their potentials. To help the cattleman attain a firmer footing on the market, McCoy suggests that beef cattle always be bought fresh and of consistent quality. He also urges the choosing of efficient cattle from reliable sources. At the time of sale, he recommends the cattle be turned over to a reputable high-quality buyer.

"The reputable buyer can help keep the feeder abreast of what's going on and knows details of weight shrinkage and feed conditions," McCoy explained.

Continuing his talk on marketing, but focusing his attention on trends of buying selling, McCoy warned his audience that "We are in jeopardy of losing the marketing system as we know it today." A cattle buyer himself, McCoy said he was frightened by the amount of control the packer is developing through direct sales. "When the packer is allowed to control, and not forced to compete, it's a bad situation." McCoy stated.

If present trends aren't stalled or reversed, McCoy believes the marketing situation will get worse. The problem, according to Mc Coy, is that a lot of cattle are bought directly by the packers based on the market price setting structure. However, as the packers lure more and more farmers into their direct-buying schemes, the competitive auction market itself becomes weaker, and the entire market price structure drops accordingly.

The producer should decide on his market for more than just dollars, McCoy insists. The overall trend and income in the future is to be considered. It's something which McCoy believes should be studied in schools and colleges, and then protected through competitive bidding at auction.

Penn State's Les Burdette, who also participated in the Lancaster County Cattle Feeder's Day, has this to say about marketing:

"If you're talking to the market, you fed your cattle too long." He explains that "those last pounds of gain are expensive pounds," and advises cattlemen to brush up on their knowledge of yield grades and modern technology. "It takes 2½ times as much feed to put on a pound of fat as it does to put on a pound of lean," the cattle specialist told the cattlemen.

"Cattle marketing boils down mainly to being a good businessman, but even with the right decisions the last couple of years have been tough," he concluded.

During a panel discussion at the end of the day-long program, it was revealed that better prices are generally paid for exotic crossbreds, as opposed to straight exotic breeds. Heifers are desirable in this region of the country. There's also a definite market for bulls, but "too many problems" are associated with them. Says Burdette: "Bulls gain as fast as steers, but don't feed a lot of them unless you know where to go with them."

Milk price boost too short, says NFU

WASHINGTON, D.C. The dairy price support increase, announced March 22 by the Carter Administration, is "far short of what is needed but is a definite improvement over the exisitng figure or the level advocated by the Council on Wage and Price Stability," Tony T. Dechant, president of National Farmers Union said.

Noting that manufacturing milk prices had declined almost $1 per hundred pounds since January a year ago and that the milk-feed price ratio has worsened by 15 per cent in that same time, Dechant said the stated increase of 74 cents per hundred pounds to $9.00 represents "slightly more than half of the increase needed to keep pace with rising costs and to keep dairying a viable industry."

"At the same time, the new figure is some improvement over the existing level of $8.26 (76 per cent of parity) or the $8.13 support level urged by the wage and price council," Dechant said.

Acknowledging that USDA said it would take another look at the situation in six months, Dechant said that would be too long a delay and indicated Farmers Union would continue to urge Congress to raise the statutory minimum to 90 per cent of parity or $9.67 per hundred pounds.

Dechant said he was pleased that USDA intends to remove the "cheese tilt", in the USDA buying levels so that producers of butter and nonfat dry milk would be treated with cheese processors.

Agway PRO:RIGHT™
A new feed for high-producing herds

Cows on new Agway PRO:RIGHT Feeds break the barrier to higher milk production... In tests with 12 high-producing herds, rolling averages increased 467 pounds in 3 months!

If your herd is averaging 15,000 pounds or better (or if you'd like it to be), Agway PRO:RIGHT is for you. It's the feed of the future, for the professional dairyman.

Regulation of solubility is the key. New Agway PRO:RIGHT Feeds are formulated to regulate* the amount of both soluble and insoluble protein. Both forms are needed to effectively meet the total protein requirements of high producing cows. Agway Research has answered the question of how much of each form is needed.

Result: a dramatic increase in milk production, with higher—and sustained—peaking.

Tests on 12 herds in 6 states prove it! The herds tested under Agway Research supervision were already producing at excellent levels. After feeding new Agway PRO:RIGHT for 3 months, rolling herd averages had increased from 15,911 to 16,378 pounds per cow!

Meet the man who created the cartoon

'Rural Route' thrives on farm humor

"Little Luke," the farmer who regularly stars in "Rural Route," was created five or six years ago by Tom Armstrong. Up until March of last year Armstrong kept the little fellow strictly within the family on greeting cards. "Little Luke" himself is an extension of his creator, while many of the ideas are based on Armstrong's own experiences in agriculture and agribusiness.

By DIETER KRIEG

SELLERSVILLE, Pa. – For more than a year now readers of Lancaster Farming have been laughing with and at a little farmer known as "Little Luke." He's the main character of the cartoon strip "Rural Route", which appears weekly and exclusively within the pages of this newspaper. "Rural Route's" creator is free-lance artist Tom Armstrong who lives near this Montgomery town with his wife and two sons, Keith 18, and Scott 13.

When Armstrong introduced himself and his cartoon to Lancaster Farming's editor last year, the idea was an instant hit which spread quickly throughout the staff. After all, who could resist laughing at a little fellow who finds himself before a judge saying "No your honor, I did not know the milk inspector was behind me when I engaged the manure spreader."

More recently, the innovative little character allowed for ten acres of coffee trees in his cropping program.

Week after week, he treats his audiences with laughs.

Armstrong is a 1955 graduate of Penn State University with a degree in animal science. He was a member of the livestock judging team and had at one time been herdsman of one of the largest purebred Angus herds in the East. Then eight years in agricultural business with a farm machinery dealer brought him in direct contact with many farmers. Those ties have never been broken and are a source of many of the ideas Armstrong puts down on paper in the form of witty cartoons.

"I'll never run out of ideas for "Rural Route" as long as there is life." Armstrong assured this writer recently during a visit at his home, studio, and mini-farm. Yes, Armstrong still maintains a strong interest in the land and keeps several sheep in his old Montgomery County barn. That probably does not come as a surprise to most followers of "Rural Route" since "Little Luke" tells it pretty much the way it is. Some examples follow:

Standing by his workbench attempting to fix some unrecognizable contraption, "Little Luke" loses patience with himself, exclaiming "This is the last time I wait 'till Spring to put together something I took apart in the Fall."

In another strip, "Little Luke" made new hex signs for his barn – one for fertilizing, one for crop abundance, and one for the milk inspector. The latter showed the prongs of a pitchfork.

Then there's the one about the knotter on a baler which was giving him trouble. The baler had just finished making a super long bale when "Luke" voiced his irritation.

On another occasion the busy little farmer came into the house completely bushed and was ready to relax for hours. "Ahhhh... does this chair feel good," he sighed. "it would take World War III to move me now," he says while settling down to complete comfort. Just then his son opens the door and hollers "Hey Dad!!, You'd better come out to the barn. We got some ewes gonna lamb."

Armstrong creates his cartoons in three stages, a process which takes approximately 1½ hours per strip. First he plans things mentally. He always has a notepad at his side, and jots down ideas as they enter his mind. Aside from visualizing the ideas themselves, Armstrong must also decide how the story can best be told. That determines the number of panels a particular strip will have.

The next step is to make a pencil sketch of the cartoon, along with the wording. Finally, he does the complete drawing in ink, with grammar being checked for accuracy by his wife.

"The ideas come from my experiences," Armstrong said, who now earns his living by working as a free-lance artist. The cartoon is just more or less a hobby. The bread and butter career involves putting his artistic talents to work for advertising agencies.

"I've always pictured "Little Luke" as myself," Armstrong continued. "I created the little fellow about five or six years ago." He evolved on home-made Christmas cards, and Armstrong never dreamed of having him appear in a newspaper. "Nobody in the family ever gets a commercially produced greeting card," the cartoonist said with a note of self satisfaction. He creates his own cards and sent one of them to Lancaster Farming for Christmas last year.

Armstrong says he has been drawing since he was a kid, becoming a professional in 1961 when he joined an advertising agency as art director. For the past three years he has been working as a free-lancer.

"Rural Route's" creator describes the main character as "an honest, hard working man with perhaps an above average dislike for bureaucracy, red tape, and the interferences by others in his chosen profession."

The whole idea behind "Little Luke and 'Rural Route" is humor. Armstrong explained that some things may not seem funny at the moment they happen, – like the knotter which is turning out extra long bales – but it's funny afterwards and we should all be able to laugh at our problems and frustrations. "If there's no humor, you miss a lot in

"Rural Route" creator Tom Armstrong has his roots on the farm and spends some of his spare time with his sheep. "As long as there is life, I'll never run out of ideas for the cartoon strip," says Armstrong, who has been contributing the popular weekly cartoon to "Lancaster Farming for more than a year

Outstanding vo-ag students named at Manheim

Dennis Kulp, Clyde Peters, Dale Gruber and Jay Gainer were honored at Manheim recently.

MANHEIM — The Manheim FFA Chapter held its annual Parent and Member Banquet recently, with the recognition of superior achievements being the highlight of the evening. Held at the Manheim Central High School cafeteria, the event was witnessed by parents, friends and guests.

Capturing the most coveted award was Dennis Kulp, winner of Outstanding Senior plaque and an accompanying check from the Lancaster County Bankers Association.

The Star Chapter Red Rose Farmer Award was presented to Jay Gainer, while the Star Chapter Farmer trophy went to Clyde Peters. Dale Gruber was the Star Greenhand.

A number of other students were also recognized for their work with projects and placings in shows. Foundation awards and honor roll recognition were included as well. Keystone Farmer Degree winners for this year were called forward to be recognized and applauded.

Honorary Chapter Farmers for 1977 are Mrs. Geraldine Hershey, Mrs. Ruth Kulp and Benjamin Peters. Stone Bridge Farms received the 1977 Citation award for working closely with the Chapter on steer projects and sales.

Mrs. Hershey received her Honorary Chapter Farmer Degree for having made her home and grounds available for a Chapter FFA picnic last year. She also provided and prepared much of the food. Mrs. Kulp was recognized for having prepared meals and news articles. Peters has in past years been helpful in loaning tractors, wagons, and spreaders for use at tractor driving contests and clean-up work at the Manheim Fair.

It's the way we give each field the exact liquid fertilizer it needs.

With the SLF system, we can prescription mix a complete liquid fertilizer that matches the needs of each individual field and crop.

It means you don't have to settle for what's available. Or what's possible. Because with SLF and Arcadian® liquid, the possibilities are endless.

Allied Chemical designed SLF to deliver the same analysis in every drop. In liquid application equipment that fertilizes accurately and uniformly from start to finish over every acre.

It's made with POLY-N®, the phosphate source that increases the availability of nutrients to the crop. This helps explain why SLF mixed liquid fertilizers have proven more profitable than dry bulk blends in recent field trial comparisons.

Let us prescription mix a complete liquid fertilizer based on a complete soil analysis, and show you how profitable fertilizing the SLF way can be.

York farmers call for collective bargaining

HARRISBURG—"Farmers have little or no economic clout as a group when it comes to setting prices for their produce," state legislators were told by York County Farmers' Association President Roger Perry Monday as part of the County delegation of farmers who toured the Harrisburg Capital and visited with local representatives and senators.

"Efficiencies in production we have mastered," the dairyman said. "The lack of equality in the market place is killing us."

The farm organization spokesman was seeking support from legislators for a marketing and bargaining bill (H.B. 112) which would permit farmers to bargain collectively through a cooperative.

"We (farmers) must be afforded an opportunity as a group to meet with buyers of our products to negotiate price and other contractual arrangements, if agriculture is to survive as a free enterprise," Perry stated.

Charles Rauhauser, County dairy chairman for the Association added that farmers have "efficiencied" themselves nearly into bankruptcy. "Our economic system, with its private ownership and private incentive, provides individuals with rewards in proportion to the amount of work and ingenuity they put in," he said. "But in agriculture this is not true for the farmer."

The farmer, according to Rauhauser, still takes his products to market and takes the going price. He has very little if anything to say about that price.

"We need to enhance the overall atmosphere of the economic conditions of the farmer, if we expect to have a steady, wholesome supply of good food stuffs," Gayman said. "We need legislation to assure a strong agricultural economy."

Perry stated that another prime concern of farmers is the disappearing farmland in Pennsylvania. He urged members of the General Assembly to pass legislation that would bring to a halt condemnation proceedings against prime agricultural land.

A bill (H.B. 111) has been introduced in the House, which would require all condemnation proceedings for highways and waste disposal facilities to use less than prime farm land.

The farm leader also requested additional research funds for agricultural production to keep pace with a growing population. He cited the importance of food and fiber production as a benefit for everybody from the farmer to the consumer.

life," Armstrong philosophized. "It's so much easier to go through life laughing rather than frowning. Life for many people is too serious," Armstrong commented.

So Armstrong keeps us laughing. His cartoons have been mentioned at farmers' meetings and are occasionally seen pinned to bulletin boards.

From time to time people have asked with obvious appreciation for the feature: "Who is this fellow Tom Armstrong?" Hopefully this answered some of the curiosity "Rural Route" fans have had.

Top students honored by Northern Lebanon

LEBANON, Pa.-- The nineteenth annual banquet of the Northern Lebanon FFA Chapter was held recently with approximately 350 members and guests attending. The "Chosen Ones", a gospel ensemble including Kevin Moyer of the Northern Lebanon FFA Chapter, entertained the guests.

A sweetheart pin was presented to Darlene Ditzler the chapter's new sweetheart. Following this, Herman Manbeck, State FFA chaplain, gave opening remarks.

Frances Bragg delivered a report on her work experiences in Switzerland and Austria last summer. Miss Bragg spent six months working on farms in those countries while participating in the FFA Work Experience Abroad program. During this time she also toured various sites of interest in Europe.

After Miss Bragg's report, a slide presentation concerning chapter activities throughout the past year was shown..

Presentation of awards highlighted the evening. The first awards were honorary membership degrees given to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Boltz, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Sweinhart, and Mr. Glen Moyer.

Following this, the chapter's outstanding freshman, Michael Brajkovich, received the Star Greenhand award. The runner-up for this award received leadership medals. These gifts were presented by Dale Maulfair, president of the alumni association which sponsored the medals and the Star Greenhand plaque.

Donald Blauch of Maple Lane Dairies presented a heifer calf to Marilyn Deaven. Marilyn was the winner of an essay contest entitled "How to Feed and Care For a Dairy Calf."

Advisor J. Ray Bickel then presented awards to the winners in the project book contest. In the county contest, winners of blue ribbons were Rick Boltz, Chris Gettle, Mark Tyrpin, Barb Herr, Mike Shuey, Arthur Sweinhart, Deb Brown, Helen Walborn, Paul Gibble, Steve Kreiser, Tom Seaman, Dave Fortna, Barb Loverich, Larry Gross, Randie Wolferd and Joe Renik. Winners of red ribbons were Scott Ritchie, Dale Kiene, Earl Wegner, Cathy Milks, Ernie Meily, Dave Blatt, Tom Donmoyer, Rosemary Smith, Mark Mindy, and Randy Behney. White ribbons went to Gary Getz, Gary Geibe, Jim Kiene, Darlene Ditzler and Jacob Koons.

In the state project book contest the winners of gold medals were Ed Wampler, Larry Gross, Mark Tyrpin, and Dave Fortna. Silver medals were won by Joe Renik, Randie Wolferd, Arthur Sweinhart, and Barb Herr. Bronze medals went to Tom Donmoyer, Barry Donmoyer, Deb Brown, Ernie Meily, and Rick Boltz.

Advisor J. Ray Bickel also presented state medals to the winners of contests that were held last summer during FFA activities week at Penn State.

Special awards were presented to those people who served on the Parliamentary Procedure team for two years or more. The recipients of these awards were Larry Gross, Arthur Sweinhart, Mark Tyrpin, Dennis Wenger, and Chester Michael. The other team members - Scott Ritchie, Tom Seaman, and Tom Donmoyer - received state gold medal awards.

A state gold medal and a trophy were presented to Gary Lentz for having won a gold medal in the state dairy judging contest for the second time. Daniel Bausher received a bronze medal in this same contest.

A special plaque was awarded to Dennis Schoffstall, coach, and the members of our FFA basketball team for placing first in the county for the past two years.

Trophies were then awarded to Arthur Sweinhart and Helen Walborn for placing first in the seed sales contest.

The outstanding chicken barbecue salespersons were Mike Shuey and Johna Fry and the outstanding citrus fruit salespersons were Barry Donmoyer, Helen Walborn, and Johna Fry. They also received trophies.

Winners of the FFA showcase trophies were: Tom Seaman for his swine project; Arthur Sweinhart for his poultry project; Barry Donmoyer for his dairy project; Barb Herr for her steer project; Mike Shuey for tractor driving; Daniel Bausher for public speaking; and Mark Typrpin for corn production.

Royster importing ammonia

NORFOLK, Va.—Royster Company, headquartered here, announced that it is entering into a dual agreement with Occidental Chemical Company, Houston, Tex., on the purchasing and terminaling of anhydrous ammonia, a basic nitrogen fertilizer material.

The first agreement is a multi-year contract for Royster to purchase anhydrous ammonia from Occidental. The ammonia will be shipped from Russia in 25,000-ton capacity vessels to Royster's ammonia terminal in the Tampa Bay area of Florida. The ammonia will be used in the company's phosphate complex in nearby Mulberry, Fla. The first shipment from Russia under the agreement with Occidental will be in January 1978.

The Royster terminal is now under construction by Tidewater Construction Corporation of Norfolk and is scheduled for completion in late 1977. It will be available to the public for storage and transshipment of ammonia. The new complex will have a storage capacity of 35,000 metric tons, will be able to unload vessels at the rate of 1,250 tons per hour and outload at the rate of 100 tons per hour. The annual throughput will be 300,000 tons.

191 bushels wins corn crown

LANCASTER - David McMichael of Lancaster R6 was recently named Pennsylvania's winner in the National Corn Growers Association's 25-acre corn growing contest. He won first place with a yield of 191.16 bushels per acre, using P.A.G. 7545 seed corn.

McMichael planted his 25 acre contest plot on April 23, and harvested it in mid October. Using minimum tillage practices, the Manor Township farmer disked in 100 pounds of nitrogen and 90 pounds of potassium per acre. A liquid plant food was incorporated at planting time. Weed control measures included one quart of Lasso and one quart of Atrazine per acre.

The National Corn Growers Association, headquartered in Boone, Iowa, sponsors the contest. An award from that organization for McMichael is forthcoming. The P.A.G. people made their presentations last week, including a trophy and $500 certificate for seed corn purchases.

The second-place individual in the contest is Ken Golden of York Springs. His entry was DeKalb XL 72B which yielded 174.84 bushels per acre. In third place was Joseph Kreider of Lebanon with a yield of 173.25 bushels per acre from his Pioneer 3518 variety.

As Pennsylvania's champion in the 25-acre NCGA corn growing contest, David McMichael, center, received a trophy and a certificate good for the purchase of $500 worth of P.A.G. seed corn. Congratulating the Lancaster R6 farmer are John Schwartz, left, P.A.G. territory manager, and Melvin Shertzer, area salesman.

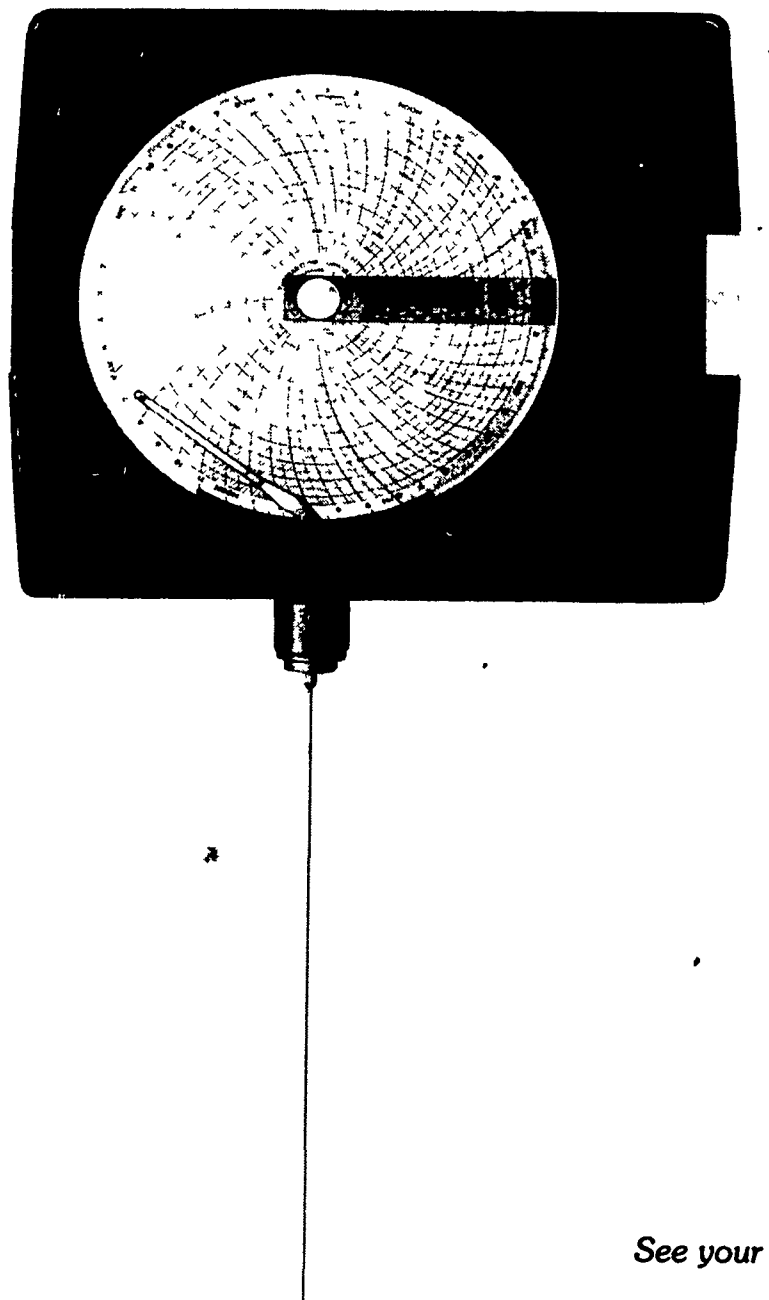
THE SENTINEL



Round-the-clock guardian of stored milk temperature

If you depend upon your milk check for a living, protect that income by insuring milk quality.

The least expensive, single-payment insurance obtainable is the Sentinel — the heavy-duty, 10-inch recorder which charts round-the-clock temperature of your milk-cooling or holding tank.

Assure yourself — and your processor — that proper milk temperature is always maintained.

Keep a permanent log of compressor operation and tank cooling or pre-cooling efficiency, from first filling to pickup.

Cleaning temperatures — increasingly questioned by sanitarians — are recorded on the same chart.

At little added cost, the Sentinel is available with provision for actuating an alarm or warning light if milk holding temperature rises above pre-set level.

Remember — if it prevents the loss of only one tank of milk, the Sentinel has paid its own way.

Bug tip

FLEMINGTON, N.J. - Tent caterpillars spend the winter as brownish egg masses on twigs of black cherry, chokecherry, apple, and other fruit and ornamental trees.

Egg masses are about one inch long and completely encircle the twigs, says Louis M. Vasvary, Extension specialist in entomology at Cook College, Rutgers University.

Eggs hatch during the first warm spell about the time wild cherry leaves begin to appear. Young caterpillars gather in a nearby fork of limbs and spin a large webby nest. They leave the nest during the day to feed on leaves and return to the nest at night.

All you need to do is crumple a piece of newspaper and wipe the nests out of your trees. Burning a nest with a torch does the job but you may hurt your tree or start a fire.

Every egg mass you remove will lessen the potential population of tent caterpillars by 200 to 300 individuals.

Abandoned dairymen find market

By JOYCE BUPP
York County Reporter

YORK, Pa. - About 65 York and Adams County dairymen who were issued pick-up termination slips early in March have signed on as members of the Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers, Inc., Baltimore.

"This will not be throwing any additional new milk on the already adequate supplies available in Order 4," emphasized Walter Engeman, head of Field Service for MCMP. "The milk was already there before." The production from the farms will continue to be handled through Federal Order 2, where milk loads have been handled in the past by the New Holland dairy which terminated the shippers.

"The shippers needed a market, and that's what the cooperative is all about. Part of our job is finding markets for dairy farmers," added Engeman.

The Maryland cooperative is looking toward the future of supplies of milk, with ground scheduled to be broken this week for a milk powder and butter manufacturing plant. The building effort is being made jointly with Interstate Milk Producers of Southampton to assure future market security to dairymen and adequate retail supplies to housewives in the Mid-Atlantic region.

About 100 shippers in three counties were affected by the New Holland cutback. A few will reportedly discontinue the dairy business. Others not signing on with the Maryland marketing firm have signed up with other area dairies, assuring them of a continued outlet.

American farmers check European trade potential

BRUSSELS, Belgium – A delegation of 12 American farmers headed by American Farm Bureau president, Allan Grant, has just concluded visits with EC representatives on freer trade for agricultural commodities. Of major concern to both the EC and the United States are the General Agreement on Trade and Tariff (GATT) negotiations which are to resume this year in Geneva.

"After a year of discussing procedures for the talks," said Grant, "the EC is ready to discuss agriculture and ways and means to minimize trade barriers."

Some 90 nations are involved in the GATT talks, the goal of which is to promote freer exchange of goods and services in the world market by reducing tariff and nontariff barriers. The talks are important to American farmers because of more than $22 billion worth of farm products the United Staes exported in 1975, of which $15 billion worth were confronted with some form of trade barriers or restrictions.

"We have found that they are determined to get something moving in the GATT negotiations this year," said Grant. "We've been stalled for a year. We've met with them and their philosophies are different from ours. They have a regulated economy with prices on commodities set at some fictitious level which has nothing to do with the market and we have to compete with those commodities if they are subsidized in their export from the European Community.

"We've told them under no uncertain terms that we could compete with farmers anywhere in the world but not with subsidized products. They understand this and Robert Strauss, the U.S. Representative to the GATT talks, and the EC's Olav Gundelach are determined to make some progress during 1977.

"Solving the problem isn't going to be easy," continued the AFBF president, "because many countries want a separate set of standards for agricultural goods, while the United States is bargaining for equal footing for both agriculture and industry. This is important to all Americans because the agricultural community provides more than $22 billion worth of agricultural commodities for export and that helps pay for foreign oil."

The purpose of the 10-day series of conferences with EC leaders is to pave the way toward mutually beneficial trade policies between the U.S. and the European Community. The group hopes its meetings will lead to the reduction of trade restrictions and barriers, especially the variable import levies now imposed by the EC which hamper the free flow of agricultural commodities exported by the United States.

DOWNINGTOWN—A group of junior Angus breeders and showmen interested in promoting Angus cattle recently reactivated the Eastern Pennsylvania Junior Angus Association. Future plans also call for a meeting of the Eastern and Western Associations to form a statewide Pennsylvania Junior Angus Association.

Heading the organization is Fred Wojtowicz, Downingtown. He will serve with Cheryl Wojtowicz, Downingtown, vice president and Sarah Fretz, Zionville, secretary-treasurer.

Directors include Ken Brubaker, Burgoon, Ohio, three years; Debbie Coleman, West Chester, two years and David Wylie, Nottingham, one year.

LIFE on the farm

Marvin, our hired man, had just climbed up to the silo a few minutes ago to throw a pile of silage down for the cows. Each forkful of feed came down with a burst of air and a loud thump. The entire barn smelled of fresh silage as I came walking by with hands and arms still dripping wet from washing the bulk tank.

Suddenly an idea struck me. There were at least a half dozen straw bales stacked up by the wall, and the pile of silage wasn't very high yet. I ran for the bales and tossed them over the top of the row of stanchions. Next I grabbed a pitchfork and leveled the silage, stepping back quickly each time as I heard another forkful come down from about 45 feet up.

I began to stack the straw bales up against the wall, one on top of the other, directly under the chute. Once that was done, I occupied myself with some other chores for a few minutes, anxiously awaiting the climax of this prank.

Marvin tossed the silage down with regularity. The sounds of it hitting the bottom were muffled and I thought he might be able to tell something wasn't in order below. But he didn't, and the column of silage went higher and higher into the chute.

After a little while I went outside and pretended to be in a state of panic "Hey, Marv," I yelled, "you've got enough silage down here for a month! It's at least half way up the chute."

Marvin replied with a loud and clear "Oh, it is not."

"Yes, it is, Marv, you stop and see for yourself," I hollered back.

There was a moment of silence as I struggled to keep from laughing out loud. When I heard Marvin begin to laugh, I burst out laughing too. In between the chuckles he shouted down a few names which can't be printed, and then he just sighed as he waited to be rescued. The chute was the only way down.

Anyone who has ever plugged a chute full of silage knows that it packs itself pretty tight — so I must admit I had quite a time of clearing it. I was glad I didn't let it go any higher than it was because standing under the chute and trying to knock the silage loose wasn't much fun; and if a big amount of it came down at one time, I sure did know it.

But it was worth it. It had been a slow day anyway and the gag livened things up a little.

"You got to have some fun sometime," Marvin often said, and it was occasional incidents like these which made work fun instead of a chore. Isn't that right, Marv?

Nixnutz's Corral

By BARNEY NIXNUTZ

"All the news that's unimportant, but still interesting."

EDITOR'S NOTE: In view of the fact that Barney Nixnutz hasn't been writing much in recent months, and some readers may have forgotten about him, it might be appropriate to re-introduce the character. A brief biography follows:

Nixnutz was born the day before yesterday in the midst of a brainstorm - or rainstorm - and is an old farmer from way back. He came into the world with ink in his veins, a typewriter on his lap, and a pitchfork in his hand.

The recipient of a genuine B.S. degree, he was educated by T. Wes Brillik, infamous sports columnist and prognosticator at the Pennsylvania Mirrow, State College. (The same outfit which the editor of this newspaper used to work for).

Since coming to Lancaster Farming, Nixnutz has been in charge of anything which isn't news and yet still of possible interest to readers. He brought with him a large wastebasket and a willingness to accept the buck when everyone else passes it.

Name calling

At a recent meeting of dairy farmers in Lancaster County, an amiable fellow sitting in the corner acknowledged his introduction to the crowd by standing up and announcing "I'm also an inspector, besides other things that I get called."

Hot idea

This one, folks, made the national news on NBC television. It's too good to not reconstruct here for those who might have missed John Chancellor reporting on it. The news was that a legislator in the Midwest had introduced a bill before his government that the months of January and February be abolished.

The idea, you see, is to take the 58 days of those two Winter months and disperse them amidst June, July, and August, thus prolonging Summer. Since no one in his state had any pleasant memories of the Winter they had just gone through, the motion was carried unanimously. It was simple - the two coldest months of the year would be eliminated, and Summer would get an extra 58 days.

The legislator was later credited with saying that his bill was no more ridiculous than many others introduced in government.

Out of breath

Did any of you guys ever have to blow up one of those plastic cows which serve as door prizes at some dairy meetings? That takes considerably more wind than one might expect. Now I'm wondering who the big windbags might be who inflate those cows prior to the meetings. I wouldn't want the job and I hope those guys have a pump.

Short career

This roving reporter has learned about a new agricultural fraternity known as "Farmers Anonymous." It is supposedly a group of farmers who will come to the aid of an individual who might have the notion of getting into farming. By calling Farmers Anonymous, the individual will receive an invitation to drink with the fellows until the farming idea is forgotten

Manure regulations set straight

LANCASTER—For farmers concerned about potential manure management problems, the dairy manure storage tour on Tuesday sponsored by the Lancaster County Extension Service helped to dispel some false information and rumors concerning environmental regulations.

Ernest F. Giovannitti, chief of the division of industrial waste and erosion control for the Department of Environmental Resources in Harrisburg, participated in the tour to set the facts straight concerning manure management regulations.

Giovannitti stressed to dairymen that there are no state or federal regulations requiring storage facilities for manure. Daily hauling is an acceptable practice according to the manure manual approved by the Agricultural Advisory Committee of DER. The advisory committee is composed of farm organizations, extension personnel, Soil Conservation Service representatives and environmental resources staff.

This manual, which will outline the approved management practices, is officially called "Manure management for Environmental Protection", and will go into effect in mid-May when it will be formally approved by the Environmental Quality Board.

Farmers who follow the guidelines in the manual do not need to apply for a DER permit. It was pointed out that Pennsylvania is the only state which substitutes the use of a manual for the need for permits and regulations. When the manual goes into effect there will also be no requirement to have a permit for land application, such as spray irrigation.

The manual has been compiled to conform to two laws which govern manure waste handling, namely the 1970 amendment to the Clean Streams Law, a Pennsylvania law, and the 1972 amendment to the Federal Water Pollution Control Act.

The system was built last Summer on the Robert Kauffman farm, Peach Bottom.

McGovern sees similarities in meat nutrition opinions

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Senator George McGovern, chairman of the Senate Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs, said that he believes "the interests of nutrition experts and those of cattle producers are remarkably similar."

He explained that the preponderance of medical evidence indicates that it would be prudent for Americans to reduce their overall calorie intake - particularly calories in the form of fat.

"It should be noted," McGovern said, "that nowhere in the Committee report 'Dietary Goals for the United States' do the experts urge a reduction in protein intake."

McGovern said that all the testimony heard by the Committee indicates that meat is an excellent source of that protein. 'What I think we can conclude from our discussions today," the South Dakotan stated, "is that beef producers could increase their profits by marketing leaner animal which would be more efficient to produce and at the same time would be palatable and contain less waste fat."

He said every member of the Committee is aware of the current economic plight of the beef industry and that he was pleased with the cooperative spirit shown in recent hearings.

The Steiger Tractor Works in Fargo, N.D. were opened to interested farmers and Steiger owners earlier this year. C.B. Hoober and Son, Inc. of Intercourse, Pa. and Hoober Equipment of Sudlersville, Md., helped organize the tour for travellers from a four state area, including Pennsylvania, Maryland, New Jersey and Delaware. The Hoober firms have 32 Steigers in service in those areas. While touring the plant, the visitors were also given a preview of two and three engine prototypes.

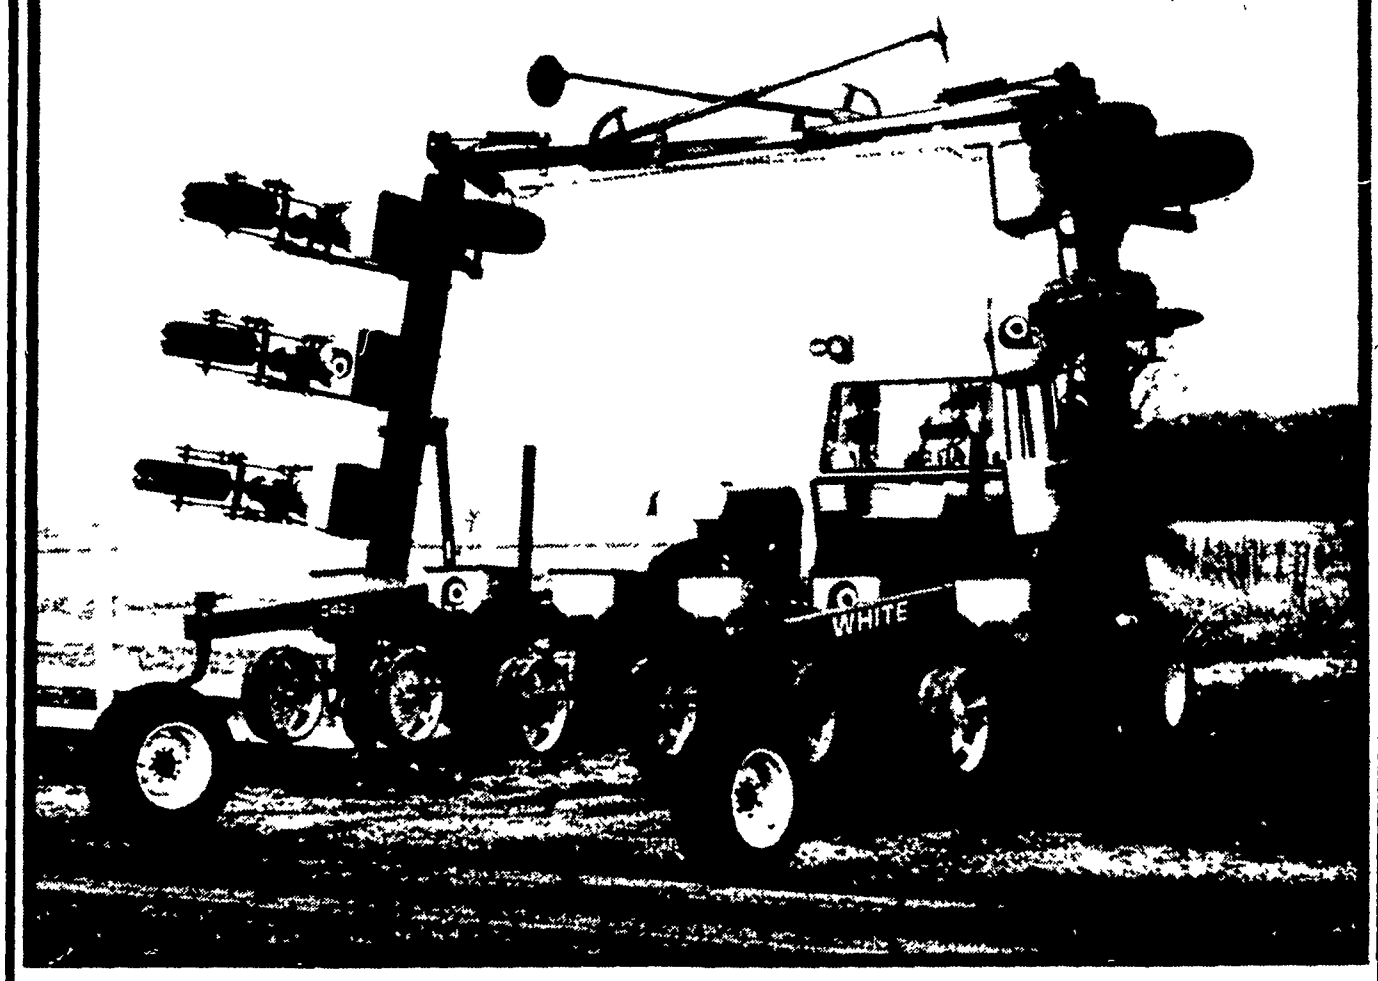
Uncomplicate planting this spring with a white Plant/Aire



Spring planting is complicated enough without unexpected surprises from your planter. The Plant/Aire TM can simplify matters considerably. First...there are only two moving parts per row for simplicity. Second...the Plant/Aire plants accurately at high speed for "on-schedule" planting. Third... a seed monitor that counts seed population in addition to giving you both visual and audible warnings should a planter malfunction occur is standard equipment to allow you to plant with confidence. Simple...fast...accurate and reliable.

The most complicated thing about a White Plant-Aire is deciding upon which of the three mounted or one drawn models your acreage requires. Ask your White dealer to help you decide on the model, size and optional equipment. From that point on...spring planting can proceed in most uncomplicated fashion.

Manure

Giovannitti made it clear that there are no plans at any level to prohibit daily hauling or spreading on frozen ground as long as it doesn't pollute. There are also no regulations on the size of storage facility required if a farmer chooses to use such a facility. Giovannitti said the one criteria for manure management is that a farmer does not pollute.

Gerald Bodman, extension agricultural engineer for The Pennsylvania State University, and N. Alan Bair, extension county agent, pointed out some safety factors to be considered in any manure management facility. They told farmers that costs should be figured on the cost per cow per day of storage to make an accurate comparison of systems. These costs, Bodman said, can vary from $.10 to $2.00 for a storage facility. Calculations for size should include not just manure, but also feedlot runoff water precipitation that falls on the storage area, Bair said.

Bodman summed up DER regulations and their effect upon farmers by saying, "The farmer who is doing a good job will not have to worry." Bodman also pointed out that by following Pennsylvania guidelines, a farmer will be complying with federal regulations.

Four farms were included on the manure storage tour, each having a different type of facility. At the peak of the tour over 125 persons representing nine counties participated.

At the Howard Kreider farm, New Providence R1, tour participants saw an above ground storage for liquid manure from a free-stall barn. The Robert Groff farm, Quarryville R1, uses an under-barn concrete pit for liquid manure from a grated tie stall barn.

Robert Kauffman, Peach Bottom R2, has an earthen bank storage with a slot dam, holding conventional manure from a new tie stall barn. At the Donald Trimble farm, Peach Bottom R2, there is an earthen bank storage emptied with a self-loading spreader or pond type pump.

York/Adams Guernsey breeders hold annual meeting

SHREWSBURY, Pa. - Guernsey breeders from York and Adams counties met March 22 at the Shrewsbury Fire Hall for their annual meeting and banquet. About 100 dairy farmers and their guests were in attendance.

Re-elected to three-year terms on the board were Leo Rutter, York, George Rohrbaugh, New Freedom, and Steve Staber of Windsor.

Two countians were recognized for achievements by their prize-winning animals. Tina Rutter, 53 Lightner Road, York, was named a state winner in competition held by the Pennsylvania Junior Guernsey Breeders' Association. Her two-year-old cow, Rutter Bros. Hornets Ruth, took top award in her age group production category with a record in 305 days of 13,908 pounds of milk and 660 pounds of fat.

Avalong Farms, York R7, was cited for the top producing animal in the breed within Pennsylvania in 1976. The York County herd was rated third in the state for overall production last year. Larry Amspacher, herdsman, represented the dairy at the meeting.

Yearly activities scheduled by the Association will include a Summer chicken-bar-b-que picnic during July.

The program following the dinner and business meeting was a color slide presentation by Leo Rutter. Rutter, with three other countians, traveled to Northwest Territory, Canada, last September for two weeks. Purpose of their trip was to hunt big game, with the quarry including moose, caribou, and big-horned sheep.

Lebanon FFA'er to work abroad

LEBANON—Timothy Dundore of Zinns Mill Road Quentin, Pa., has been accepted to participate in the FFA Work Experience Abroad (WEA) program this Summer. The program is an international educational exchange activity of the Future Farmers of America and rural youth organizations in other countries.

A recent announcement from the National FFA Center, Alexandria, Va., noted that Dundore will be placed for agricultural work experience for 12 months this Summer in a few of more than 25 countries participating in the exchange program.

By living and working with a family Dundore says that he will have the opportunity to learn about their way of life, to exchange ideas in agriculture, and contribute to international understanding.

Dundore is a 1975 graduate of Cedar Crest High School. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Dundore of Quentin. His vocational agriculture teachers are Jay Lentz and Richard Moore.

Garden Spot bestows FFA awards

LAMPETER, Pa.—The Garden Spot FFA Chapter at Lampeter-Strasburg High School held their annual Parent-Member awards banquet on March 17 in the school cafeteria.

Members who were honored during the evening were as follows; Don Brubaker, Star Greenhand Award; Bob Shissler, Star Chapter Farmer Award; and Chuck Groff, Star Red Rose Farmer.

FFA foundation awards for proficiency in agriculture were awarded to Chuck Groff in beef production and public speaking, Art Mellinger in dairy production and crops production, Bob Shissler in fish and wildlife management, and Joe Witmer in swine production and placement in agricultural production. Dwight Eshleman won the Lancaster County Bankers Association Award as well as the Dekalb Award as the outstanding senior FFA member. Dwight Eshleman and Bob Duvall recieved plaques as retiring officers.

Each year the chapter presents on Honorary Chapter Farmer Award to an individual who has done a lot to help or promote the FFA. This year's winner was Albert Mellinger, a Strasburg area farmer. Mellinger made available two acres of land for the chapter to raise a chapter tobacco project.

Oberholtzer's records beat all

By DIETER KRIEG

EPHRATA—When the Cloister FFA Chapter holds its annual banquet this evening (Saturday), one of the young men to be singled out as a state contest winner is Jay Oberholtzer. The 18 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Oberholtzer, Lititz R4, Jay was recently named state winner in the Farm Credit Record Book Award contest. It is sponsored by the Production Credit Association. The prize includes a check for $200.

Young Oberholtzer received the honor on the basis of his superior record keeping system. Farming without accurate records is simply something Oberholtzer can't envision.

A senior at Ephrata High School, the state award winner says he never found a commercial record keeping system which he likes. Consequently, he developed his own. Admitting that he enjoys the pencil and paper work, he explains that with records he knows where he's at, gets an idea of where he's headed, knows where the money is, and has all the figures handy at income tax time. He works with his statements on a monthly basis, emphasizing that a regular procedure is one of the keys to having it work well. He also stresses keeping the figures accurate.

With a future in farming planned, Oberholtzer is currently working on his parents' 50 acre farm and as a mechanic in his father's small gas engine shop. He keeps financial records on his breeding swine, as well as data on breeding, vaccination, weaning and farrowing. His other enterprises include poultry and field crops.

The award Oberholtzer is to receive this evening is given for accurate record keeping and efficiency in agricultural production, says Lew Ayres, vo-ag instructor at Ephrata. He notes that Jay keeps a complete set of farm accounts, including a depreciation schedule. The young man also prepares his own income tax return.

A filing cabinet is one of the more important components of a record keeping system, Oberholtzer says. He has everything categorized and labeled. Filing it in its proper slot makes everything handy when he wants to refer back to it. A calculator and desk complete the system. Oberholtzer considers records to be an important management tool which will help him decide what he wants to do in the coming year.

An honor student, the award winner has had one trip to the National FFA Convention in Kansas City as a milk products judge. This year he'll be participating in the National FFA Land Judging Contest, to he held in Oklahoma City later this month.

In addition to his farming activities and school work, Oberholtzer has also been able to maintain an active slate in his church and church related activities. He is chaplain of the Cloister FFA Chapter.

Other project book winners from Ephrata include:

Gary Eberly, Lin Frey, Curtis Martin, Cliff Martin, and John Weiler, all of them "gold" winners.

Receiving the "silver" tonight are John Zimmerman, Allen Ackley, Reuben Auker, David Martin, and Steve Hull.

"Bronze" awards will be presented to Marty Hoover, Robert Fox and Sheryl Bollinger.

Order 4 milk price dropped

SOUTHAMPTON, PA. – Area dairy farmers who are members of Inter-State Milk Producers' Cooperative received $9.93 per hundredweight for milk they produced during February.

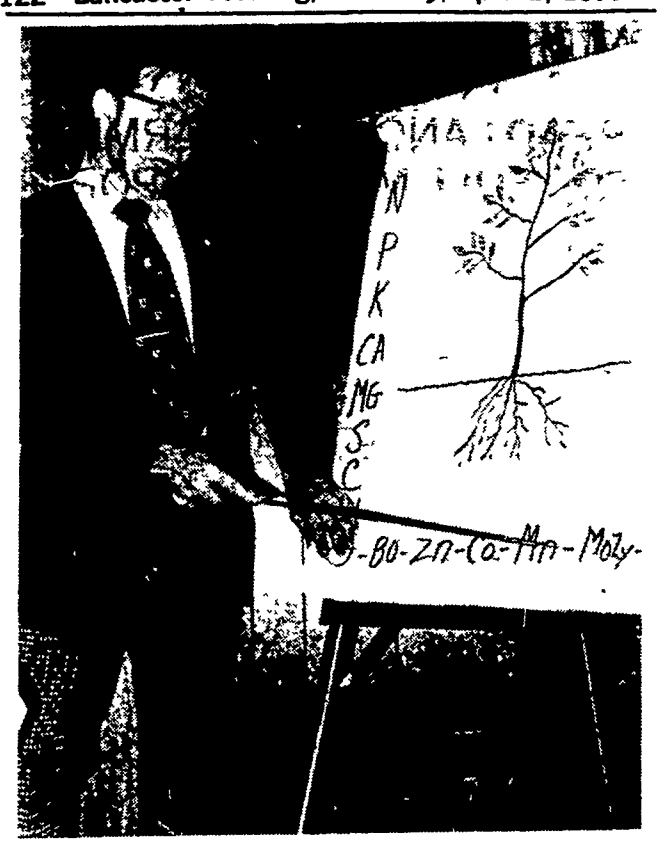
This price, known as the weighted average price, is the actual average price all Federal Order 4 dairymen receive for milk containing 3.5 per cent butterfat. It is adjusted accordingly for higher or lower butterfat content.

The February weighted average blend price is equivalent to 21 cents per quart. That price compares to $10.04 per cwt. for the previous month and $10.68 per cwt. for a year ago. Quart equivalent prices were 22 cents for the previous month and 23 cents for a year ago.

The farm base milk price for February was $10.24 per cwt. while the excess price was $8.19 per cwt. The butterfat differential was 10.4 cents for each point above or below 3.5 per cent. The base price is down .10 per cwt. from the previous month and down .76 per cwt. from a year ago. The excess price is down .04 per cwt. from the previous month and down .11 per cwt. from a year ago.

A total of 425 million pounds of Federal Order 4 producer milk was pooled in February of which 61 per cent was sold as Class I, compared to 62 per cent for the previous month and 64 per cent a year ago. A total of 7,975 Order No. 4 producers provided 15.2 million pounds per day to dealers during February averaging 1,902 pounds per farm per day. Total value of producer milk was set at $37 million per month.

Some people believe that a green ivy leaf placed in water in a covered dish after dark on New Year's Eve and left until Twelfth Night will tell the future



Arnold Lueck, Lancaster County Extension Agent specializing in plants, says 16 minerals are needed by crops for "grow power". Some of the more important ones are nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium. Nitrogen is for growth; phosphorus is most beneficial for developing root systems and causing flowering of the plant; and potassium is for general metabolism and cell wall rigidity to keep the plant standing up.

Herb Wessel, left, president of Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers, is congratulated by Carroll County Extension Agent Robert L. Jones. Jones is president of the National Association of County Agriculture Agents. The "Outstanding Service to American Agriculture" award was given to Wessel in a surprise presentation by Ken Wisner, President of the Maryland County Agriculture Agents Association.

Fertilizer costs to rise this Fall

John Burton

LANCASTER -- The supply of nitrogen fertilizers is within 0.8 million tons of being balanced with demands, John Burton of Ortho Chemical Company told a group of farmers meeting here last month. That's awful close, he indicated, hinting that the balance could be upset if anything drastic happens in the supply situation. He did not believe that would happen, however, and now that the Winter is over, nitrogen is not likely to be cut off. Even during the energy crisis this year, the fertilizer industry ranked second to home heating in terms of priority shipments.

"Prices will be firmer," Burton said. Natural gas, which is used in the production of nitrogen fertilizer, is up 40 per cent over what it was in 1973. But that increase hasn't yet been reflected in 1977 fertilizer costs, the Ortho sales representative said.

Other material costs are likely to be up, as well as transportation expenses and pollution control outlays. According to Burton, half the price of a bag of fertilizer goes for expenses such as trasportation, energy, and pollution control.

Price increases are minimal now. Rising costs are likely to be reflected to a greater extent this Fall.

The upcoming planting season is expected to see a 1.9 per cent decrease in the use of fertilizer, Burton said, citing USDA figures. In contrast, 1976 saw an increase of 18.2 per cent.

Supplies are adequate, Burton assured, but trying to transport supplies to the proper destinations at the right time is a real challenge. The way the season unfolds will have much to do with fertilizer distribution. If normal weather patterns hold true and regions aren't forced to call for their needs simultaneously, the situation should be okay.

A shortage of railroad cars and the fact that grain shipments were postponed for weeks when barges were locked into rivers and ports by ice, are factors in fertilizer distribution this year.

Gold Feather Award given to 26 area poultrymen

HARRISBURG - For the second straight year, Pennsylvania poultrymen and allied industrymen have surpassed the goal for ticket sales to the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation's Annual Fund Raising Banquet. In 1976, 750 tickets were set as the goal and final sales soared to 903 tickets. This year, the enthusiastic salesmen set a goal of 1,100 tickets and ten days prior to the banquet had already gone past that figure with 1,137 tickets sold. The banquet has become one of the most important poultry events in Pennsylvania for two principal reasons. First the banquet itself has become an evening of the "exceptional" rather than the "usual", attracting a larger number of people each year. Secondly, proceeds after expenses are used to support the industry's state association which serves as the political and economical watchdog for Pennsylvania poultrymen.

Each year special recognition is given to salesmen who attain ticket sales of twenty or more. The special recognition consists of induction into the distinguished Gold Feather Club, whose members are recognized in the banquet program and the press and receive a special gift from the state association. The 1977 Gold Feather Club includes the following individuals: A. Eugene Bailey, Grimes Poultry Processing Co., Fredericksburg; Dr. Jules Bauerman, Horace W. Longacre, Inc., Franconia; Earl Birk Pennfield Corporation, Lancaster; Robin Bissell, Horace W. Longacre, Inc., Franconia; Thomas Bross, III, Round Hill Foods, Inc. ## THE DAIRY SUPPLEMENT WITH "milk power"

WHAT GIVES PURINA Hi-O COW CHOW 36 IT'S "MILK POWER"?

Purina Dairy scientists have produced many outstanding Dairy rations through the years, but none offer a greater milk-making potential than Hi-O Cow Chow 36. This "super performing" supplement contains 36% protein. When mixed with grains according to Purina Research approved formulas it produces a "super" energy milking ration.

It is the unique scientific blending of a carefully calculated balance of proteins, minerals, vitamins and extra high energy milk-making ingredients that provides Hi-O Cow Chow 36 with its unusual power to produce extra milk.

Use Hi-O Cow Chow 36 for on-the-farm mixing or let your Purina dealer Check-R-Mix a Purina milking ration for you containing Hi-O Cow Chow 36. He has specific formulas to make a quality milking ration with the right protein level to fit your roughages and your herd.

Records show Hi-O Concentrate 36 not only increases milk production, but dairymen report significant increase in fat test.

THE PURINA CHALLENGE....

Good cows should be challenged to reach their genetic capacity for high milk and fat production. Many DHIA records prove conclusively that an increase in energy intake produces a corresponding increase in milk production which adds to milk income. Many production records from studies at the Purina Dairy Research Center substantiate this relationship. If you are not feeding your cows to their full milk making capacity, Purina Hi-O Cow Chow 36 is the supplement that could be what you need to achieve that goal.

Let your local Purina Dealer or mail the coupon and let us help you figure the nutritional requirements of your herd to determine the exact kind and amount of milk ration containing Hi-O Cow Chow 36 you should feed for maximum milk production.
